False, Foolish Yarns.
How to Be Famous.
Faster Air Mail.
Standard Oil Abroad.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

A SENATOR who should know better circulates a stupid, utterly false story to the effect that Herbert Hoover "took a drink" with Clarence Darrow, of Chicago.

The story was as foolishly false as the other campaign yarn that described Gov. Smith, intoxicated, speaking from his box at a state fair in Syracuse with two friends holding him up.

Fifty newspaper reporters knew that the story about Gov. Smith was a lie, and, besides, he did not speak from his box.

EVERYBODY that has known Herbert Hoover or dined at his house during years past, knows that he is a total abstainer, and, unlike many other public officials, allows no alcohol on his table or in his house.

Mr. Hoover wisely announces his determination not to answer foolish gossip and slander.

A wise candidate tells voters what he proposes to DO, if elected, and lets other candidates tell their own stories in their own way.

THERE are many ways of making the world talk about you.

One philosopher jumped into the crater of Vesuvius.

A slave, that his name might be remembered, burned the Temple of Diana at Ephesus.

Disraeli wore waistcoats of scarlet and gold, and curled his hair in beautiful black ringlets in the House of Commons, and Miss Sophia Curtiss gave a dinner party for her favorite horse, named "Surprise."

The horse was brought to the table; many well-known stage folk attended, and ate while the horse ate. That happened 20 years ago, but now that Miss Curtiss dies, aged 65, every newspaper will mention it.

THANK heaven, the President and Postmaster General New, the postoffice at least encourages flying, in earnest.

In the Post Office, flying is treated as a separate important enterprise, not tacked on to post-office trains and trucks as a "minor auxiliary."

Not satisfied with the excellent air mail service, the post office plans to increase mail plane speed 35 miles an hour, making the trip between the Atlantic and the Pacific in 24 hours, cutting off one day.

That is progress.

THE Standard Oil of New Jersey and the great German dye trust are said to have formed an alliance, a sort of mutual aid combination.

Germans eclipse all nations in manufacture of dyes. Standard Oil has raw materials, unlimited money, organizing and distributing power, and a magnificent staff of chemists.

Evidently Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil of New Jersey, on his recent trip to Europe, was not shooting grouse ALL the time.

THE American Railway Association delegates, representing ownership of all trolley lines, inspects plans in Cleveland for a "robot," or mechanical, street car conductor.

Westinghouse and General Electric, competing in manufacture of automatic machinery, will produce substitutes for all work purely mechanical. The human race is not destined to go through the centuries with a few enjoying freedom, the others merely cogs in a machine.

NO mechanical conductor will ever help ladies off and on the car, or answer all the foolish questions.

But a "robot" conductor could call out names of streets, collect fares, and NEVER GO ON STRIKE.

However, flesh and blood conductors need not worry yet about their jobs.

SOVIET Russia renounces what it calls "capitalistic government," and especially "capitalistic imperialism."

But human nature is human nature, and with the czars gone, Russia indulges in a little imperialism on its own account. It informs the world that the Russian flag has been raised on Cape Nil, by Prof. Samoilovitch, who went hunting for lost explorers in the Arctic.

Revolutions may change the names of government, introducing temporary theories. They don't change human nature or its strongest passion, which is TO RULE.

GERMANY is testing a giant dirigible, the "Count Zeppelin," soon to cross the ocean and begin passenger service between America and Europe.

The airship will come here driven by a new fuel called "blue gas" and return propelled by a mixture of natural and artificial gas.

Germany renders a service to this country in sending the giant airship. It will visit American cities, and in its travels it will remind Americans that there are governments not too lazy or too indifferent to engage in promotion of aviation and not rely on private initiative.

GERMAN Nationalists want a referendum to end the Republic and bring back the Hohenzollerns.

If the Germans were as foolish as that, which they are not, they would deserve everything that the Hohenzollerns would bring them, even the German Emperor who ran away at the end of a war in which every German family, except his own, had somebody killed or wounded or both.

SEARCH FOR 1ST WARD BOSS

BULLETIN.

At 2:48 p. m. today Alderman Thomas Flanigan, of the First Ward, was recalled before the graft-investigating grand jury. He appeared greatly agitated when he entered the grand jury room.

District Attorney Gardner bumped into his first setback today in the grand jury's investigation of "Boss" John J. Verona's charges that Mayor Kline's administration reeks with graft—a witness apparently had disappeared.

Detective Chief George W. Murren reported that a half dozen sleuths had been unable to locate William Winkler, Republican chairman of the Third District, First Ward, for whom a subpena has been issued. However, Murren promised to continue the search.

There were reports that the sleuths also were serving, or trying to serve, subpenas on five or six politicians who might know something of Verona's charges that police and criminals stroll hand-in-hand down the avenue of vice. No names were announced beforehand in fear that the subpenaed persons might be just as hard to find as Winkler.

"PARADE" RESUMED

The parade of witnesses was halted this morning, but this afternoon it was resumed when Constable Jack Schneider of the First Ward was taken before the grand jury and was questioned by the district attorney. The second scheduled witness was Schneider's deputy, John J. Polias.

While Verona, whose charges against Mayor Kline were responsible for the investigation, and also to blame in part for Mayor Kline firing him as police magistrate, showed a disinclination to repeat his charges under oath before the grand jury, both Gardner and his chief assistant, Andrew T. Park, appeared satisfied with Tuesday's proceedings.

"It's going to be a long and thorough investigation," the district attorney said. "Just as soon as we can clear up a few cases before the grand jury, everything else will be laid aside. By taking up these less important cases between times we expect to clear the decks for action by the end of this week."

Thomas D. Flanigan, alderman and First Ward leader, was the second witness to appear before the grand jury yesterday after Judge James B. Drew directed the investigation to proceed. He followed Verona, "Il Duce of the Hill."

VERONA SHY

While all testimony before the grand jury is secret, it was apparent that Verona did not open up to the grand jurors as he had previously to newspapermen. Fred Kury, newspaperman, was called to the grand jury room after Verona. Flanigan, Owen McManus, Second Ward chairman, and his brother, James J., constable in the same ward, had testified. It was believed Kury was called to repeat to the grand jurors statements alleged to have been made to him by Verona when the battle between the alderman and cohorts of the Kline administration waxed verbally warm.

It seems assured that the voluminous testimony submitted during the recent Federal grand jury probe into Pittsburgh liquor law violations will be turned over to District Attorney Gardner to help him in the Verona case. This testi-

As Zeppelin Prepares To Fly Sea

FIRST PHOTOS

Here are the first photographs of the giant "Graf Zeppelin" since its completion in the great Zeppelin factories at Friedrichshafen, Germany, as its crew makes the ship ready to attempt a flight across the Atlantic Ocean for America, starting, possibly, October 5. In this photo the ground crew handles the ship after a test flight.

IN FULL FLIGHT

Final test flights are being made with the "Count Zeppelin," about one and one-half times as large as the United States' greatest dirigible, the Los Angeles. The motors of this new bag burn a special, secret "blue gas."

THAW ON STRETCHER, TELLS OF FLIGHT

Col. William Thaw and Capt. Jack Morris came home today.

Friends and hospital attendants lifted them from their berths on the Pennsylvania Limited and on stretchers bore them to ambulances to take them to their homes where, physicians state, the two intrepid fliers will have to remain for weeks.

"This is a poor way to come home—feet first," Col. Thaw said, smiling as he puffed a cigar while the stretcher was being placed in the ambulance. He is suffering from a badly dislocated and fractured hip.

GOOD TO BE HOME

"Hey boys, it's good to get home again," Morris grinned from his bandages. He has a fractured pelvis, a dislocated shoulder and numerous bruises and cuts.

For the first time, Pittsburghers learned from Col. Thaw and Capt. Morris the details of the crash which wrecked their hopes of establishing a new transcontinental nonstop flight record and almost cost their lives.

In a 525 horse-powered Lockheed-Vega plane, now a total "washout," they crashed into a fence near Decatur, Ind., three and a quarter hours out of New York.

"We were keeping our schedule of 170 miles an hour in spite of a strong head wind," Morris said. "We went from New York to Indiana in three hours, passing over Pittsburgh about 10:30. As we left the Pennsylvania hills the motor was working perfectly. We already had passed one of the fellows who left ahead of us. I think it was Goebel.

FOUGHT HEAD WIND

"We came low over Pittsburgh to try and gauge the speed of the head winds by watching familiar objects. We knew then that we were fighting a wind of from 30 to 40 miles at 1,500 feet and it was much stronger higher up.

"Just after passing Dayton, O., the oil pressure weakened and the motor began to heat up. I figured

BAPTISTS QUIT COUNCIL

The Pittsburgh Baptist Association today announced its withdrawal from the Pittsburgh Council of Churches of Christ because of dissatisfaction as to the council's policy as related to the executive secretary, the Rev. Dr. Charles R. Zahnizer, and "the lack of positive responsible direction of the affairs of the council by the executive committee."

The announcement was contained in the weekly bulletin of the Baptist Association, and followed a vote of the board of directors Monday night, attended by approximately a score of prominent Baptist clergy and laymen of the Pittsburgh district.

The severance of ties, said the Rev. Dr. W. C. Chappell, executive secretary of the Baptist Association, comes after 10 years' affiliation with the Council of Churches.

DISSATISFACTION

"We have heard many reports of dissatisfaction," said Dr. Chappell, "that the churches were not receiving the service justified for the money expended by the council."

Churches contribute approximately $10,000 a year to the maintenance of the council, Dr. Chappell said he believed.

Dr. Zahnizer, when asked for a statement on the action of the Baptists and their reference to his work as secretary, said: "the whole matter is news to me and I have no comment to make."

The statement of the Pittsburgh Baptist Association follows:

The board of directors of the Pittsburgh Baptist Association voted at its regular meeting on Monday, September 24, to withdraw from the Council of Churches. The reasons for this action were found in a decided dissatisfaction with the policy of the Council as related to the executive secretary and the lack of positive responsible direction of the affairs of the Council by the executive committee. In view of the past it was believed that mere protest would avail nothing and that the best interests of co-operative denominational work could best be served by withdrawing. This action by the Pittsburgh Baptist Association is not to be interpreted as meaning any lack of sympathy with interdenominational work or desire for co-operation. In fact all of the Baptist leaders are fully committed to such co-operation

JAWORSKI THREAT

International News Service.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 26.—Safety Director Ed Barry yesterday received a letter threatening his life unless he transfers Paul Jaworski from the county jail back to City Hospital. Jaworski, a notorious bandit and murderer, was wounded and captured here September 13, after he had killed a policeman.

Sunday, the wounded gunman was removed from City Hospital to the county jail. Though physicians say he will probably be partially paralyzed the rest of his life, he is scheduled to stand trial for murder, October 22.

The letter Safety Director Barry received today, reads:

"Warning: Put Paul Jaworski back in the hospital with the best of doctors or you'll be killed. We are giving you 24 hours or take what's coming to you. Remember, 24 hours will see what happens to you." It was signed "Flathead Gang."

The "Flathead Gang" was formerly led by Jaworski and was the most notorious criminal organization in Western Pennsylvania criminal history. Barry took the letter lightly and said he thought it the work of cranks or schoolboys.

HOUSEBREAKER LOOTS KITCHEN; TAKES GEMS

Jewelry and foodstuff was the loot obtained by a burglar who early today ransacked the first floor of the home of Mrs. H. J. Moyer, 7125 Agnew street. From a buffet the thief took jewelry worth $207 and from the kitchen a loaf of bread, a quart of milk, a dozen bananas and a cake. An unlocked dining room window afforded an entrance.

RUNAWAY FREIGHT CAR KILLS B. & O. BRAKEMAN

KANE, Pa., Sept. 26.—Caught under a car which was detached from a train running down grade, Ira Sweezy, 45, of Foxburg, Pa., brakeman employed by Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, suffered injuries at Mt. Jewett, which caused his death at Kane Summit Hospital.

BUS 10 CTS. IN BEAVER, 25 HERE

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

The Philadelphia Company is giving the residents of Beaver Valley a 10-cent bus fare while it is charging 25 cents in Pittsburgh.

The Beaver Valley Motor Coach Company is operating single deck busses for 10 cents. The company was formed in 1924 by the Beaver Valley Traction Company, a subsidiary of the Philadelphia Company. The Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company is also a subsidiary of the Philadelphia Company.

Although the Beaver Valley unit operates only 12 busses on three routes, it carried 1,176,900 passengers last year.

The effect of a low fare on increased travel may be seen in the fact that Pittsburgh Motor Coach with four times as many busses carried only one and one-half times as many passengers.

Beaver Valley busses collected 29.01 cents in revenue per coach mile at 10-cent fare, while Pittsburgh busses collected 36.82 cents at a 25-cent fare.

The morning and evening rush hour periods are not the only times at which Pittsburgh busses fail to provide a "luxurious" seat for every passenger.

An East Liberty bus yesterday reached the triangle at 2 o'clock with five passengers standing. The low roof makes it impossible for a man of average height to stand upright in the aisle. For those unable to get a seat the bus offered the city's most uncomfortable means of travel.

In most other cities, even some where bus transportation is admittedly a mass form of travel, a seat is guaranteed to every passenger.

THELMA WILLIAMS

No more will Thelma Williams Gray, "Miss Pittsburgh, 1926," in the Atlantic City beauty pageant, be concerned with a husband. Today Judge C. D. Copeland, Westmoreland county courts, granted her a divorce from Jess Gray, charged with indignities and cruelties. The girl, living in Trafford, is said to be now in Boston, filling a theater engagement.

COLD SETS RECORD

Accompanied by a heavy frost the mercury fell to 35 from 5 to 8 o'clock this morning, establishing a new low record for this date. The previous low was 36 in 1887.

"A heavy deposit of frost was widespread," said Forecaster W. S. Brotzman, "causing damage to flowers and late vegetables. Ice was reported at Coraopolis."

The temperature will fall to about 36 tonight, Brotzman said, with a warming up condition tomorrow. Another cold snap will follow, he said, as a second high pressure is sweeping in from the Northwest.

34 AT FRANKLIN

FRANKLIN, Pa., Sept. 26.—With the mercury at 34, a heavy frost was noted throughout this district this morning. A severe hailstorm of short duration occurred last night.

4 on Trial In Trolley Holdup

Four men were put on trial in Criminal Court today for theft of $2,401 from a Pittsburgh Railways Company messenger in Castle Shannon, July 9. Later, the same four will be tried for theft of a $14,520 Ward Baking Company payroll fund in Liberty avenue, April 2.

The men are Sylvester Mantz, of 253 Forty-third street; William Murphy, of 145 Thirtieth street; John Otis, of 136 Long way, and George Schreiber, of 1310 Arch street.

A jury of six men and six women was selected to try the case, and the prosecution called four witnesses to establish the crime. William Murray, car dispatcher, who carried the stolen funds, testified that two men had held him up in Poplar street, Castle Shannon, but he could not identify the men, nor could he say who had taken a satchel that held the $2,401.

Through Patricia Behan, 14, of Poplar street, Castle Shannon, the commonwealth made an effort to identify Mantz as the driver of an automobile in which the holdup men fled, but she could not make the identification positive. John V. Upperman and George D. Hahn, of Castle Shannon, corroborated Murray on the details of the holdup. They could not identify the robbers. Upperman, however, supplied the license number of the car they used.

Constantinople's Notables Meet Mrs. Lindbergh

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 26.—(AP.)—Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, of Detroit, Mich., mother of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, made her debut yesterday in Constantinople society.

Mrs. Joseph C. Grew held a reception for her in the summer embassy on the Upper Bosphorus and introduced her to the American colony, Turkish notables and members of the diplomatic corps.

Mrs. Lindbergh will teach chemistry at the American College here this winter.

Rail Line Quits; Bus Competition Too Keen

PENNSBORO, W. Va., Sept. 26.—Another railway has "bitten the dust" as a result of the encroachment of automobile traffic.

It is the Harrisville Southern, operating between Cornwallis and Harrisville. Its trains of all kinds have ceased, and it is not likely that they will ever be resumed.

The action is due to lack of patronage, both passenger and freight, most of which has been diverted to motor buses, trucks and automobiles along the Northwestern turnpike.

SMITH STRONG IN PA. CITIES

The number of registered and enrolled voters of Pennsylvania expressing a preference in the straw vote canvass of the state by The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, is approaching 50,000.

This number is nearly 2½ per cent of the total vote cast in the state in the presidential election of 1924. The poll is intended to record the sentiment of at least 5 per cent of the aggregate voters in 1924. This would provide a substantial cross-section of the Pennsylvania electorate to obtain an index of the respective voting strength of Herbert Hoover and Gov. Alfred E. Smith this year in the state.

The returns in the poll have come from nearly 50 counties of the state. The total of ballots from rural districts is about equal to the number received from urban areas, with a much smaller proportion from suburban sections. Hoover has been the favorite in the rural districts and Smith has shown considerable strength in the cities.

The larger majorities given Hoover in rural counties have enabled him to constantly improve his lead over the Democratic candidate. The returns for the day, 1,305 for Hoover and 893 for Smith, account for the Hoover lead passing 9,000.

The present standing of the candidates in the Pennsylvania poll, conducted in connection with the nation-wide canvass by the Hearst papers, is as follows: Hoover 28,517, 21,762 men and 6,755 women; Smith 19,456, 14,261 men and 5,195 women.

This vote in 1924 was divided as follows: Coolidge 33,542, 25,442 men and 8,100 women; Davis 4,873, 3,986 men and 887 women; LaFollette, 3,136; not voting, 6,422.

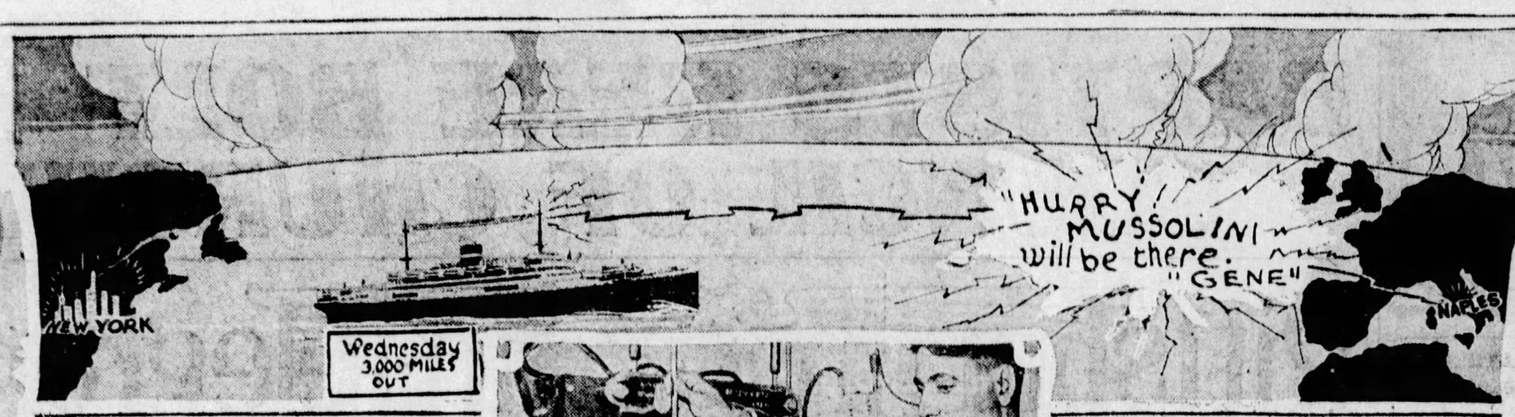
As Ship Steams On -:- Impatient Gene Radioes to Polly -:- Bound for Naples



THE OCEAN SWELLS

Onward steams Polly—Josephine Lauder, former Pittsburgh girl—aboard the SS. Saturnia, bound for Naples and Gene—Gene Tunney, who retired as King of 'Em All in the prize ring for her. Polly's only difficulty is the rough, rough ocean and her greatest happiness Gene's radiograms. About this and that, she's radioed, and now Gene tells her that Mussolini will be at the nuptials!

ITALY AWAITS

Italy awaits Polly's arrival, almost as breathlessly as Gene. For isn't Italy going to see the greatest social event of its winter when the two marry in pretty Sorrento? And won't Il Duce be there? And English and American social leaders? Polly and her party are due to arrive at Naples late Saturday afternoon and the wedding will occur very, very soon, perhaps in early October.

GARDNER'S REMOVAL IN PROBE ASKED

H. Rea Garber, chairman of the Prohibition Party County Committee of Allegheny County, today announced the committee last night met and passed the following resolution anent the grand jury probe of alleged vice and graft protection by city officials:

"The Prohibition Party County Committee of Allegheny County, believing that a fair and impartial probe into vice and graft conditions in Allegheny county cannot be had if conducted by our present District Attorney, hereby makes formal demand that the Bar Association appoint men not affiliated with partisan politics in our county to see that the present investigation by the grand jury is prosecuted vigorously along non-partisan lines.

"The fact that until recently Gardener held the office of county chairman of the Republican party would in our judgment make him unfit to conduct the present grand jury investigation."

Steal Car, Ousting Driver

Forced to stop his automobile when his machine was crowded to the curb by another machine while driving in Second avenue at Bates street, early today, Constantine Kruszewski, of 7517 Bennett street, was robbed of his machine and a wallet.

Five armed men stepped from the robbers' automobile, and two of them searched the victim.

One of the men told Kruszewski to walk down the street and two men got into his machine. Both cars were then driven away.

The wallet was empty, Kruszewski told police.

TOT FIRES STORE AS MOTHER PREPARES MEAL

While Mrs. Mary Chaffo, 6941 Chaucer street, prepared lunch in her apartment in the rear of her grocery store, her son, Michael, Jr., 2, played with matches behind the store counter and set fire to the building. Firemen extinguished the flames, which caused $25 damage.

what was coming and nosed her into a climb. Col. Thaw was sitting in the rear of the cockpit and I told him it looked like a broken oil line.

"The fog complicated things. At 6,000 feet, with all the oil gone, the motor cut out. Col. Thaw dropped a flare. It was supposed to burn four minutes, but either it didn't or I misjudged my time. Anyway, when we were 200 feet up the flare went out. Its brightness had shown me the field and the fence, but when it died everything was black as midnight. I had to land and take a guess on the fence. I hit it with the tail-skid.

SKID HITS FENCE

"When the tail-skid hit the fence it nosed her over and we made a tumble. The motor was thrown 20 feet and missed taking my feet with it by inches. The pilot's cockpit, forward, placed the controls inside the circle of the motor. Then the fuselage broke in half and pinned me down.

"A drizzle was falling. We lay in it, unable to move, for five and a half hours. We grew delirious. I suffered the hallucination that Col. Thaw wasn't with me. He was thinking the same thing about me. I was in part of the wreckage about 50 feet from him.

"Toward morning every bone in my body started aching. By the time a farmer came out and found us hot needles were sticking into me from every side."

INJURIES NOT PERMANENT

They were taken to a hospital in Decatur, where it was feared for a time the exposure would produce complications, particularly in the case of Col. Thaw. They escaped them, however, and will suffer no permanent injury.

Mrs. Morris and Mrs. Thaw came home with the fliers. Mrs. Morris left Pittsburgh immediately she learned of the crash. Mrs. Thaw, awaiting them in California, caught the first train east.

mony, only half of which has been transcribed by Federal Court reporters, will cover 12,000 typewritten pages. The testimony contains many, many references, it is said, substantiating Verona's charges, particularly concerning slot machines.

NO IMMUNITY OFFER

Determined to get to the bottom of the charges hurled at the Kline administration by the Hill district leader, Gardiner said the investigation would be non-partisan and be pushed on to completion no matter who it hurt. He also stated that he had made no offers of immunity to persons summoned before the grand jury.

The serious charges which Mayor Kline has faced since Thursday are that his administration is guilty of protecting vice and that huge sums of money are collected weekly in graft. The direct charges are:

Booze joints and gambling dens are flourishing on the Hill under police protection.

Slot machines are placed with the sanction of the administration.

Kline's administration leaders collected $7,500 a week graft from Al Forney's slot machines.

They collected $5,000 a week from Jakey Klein.

Jimmy Smith paid $500 a week for protection for many months.

Every official in the city administration knows what is going on and dives are being protected by the highest officials of the city.

BROKEN TROLLEY STEP COSTS COMPANY $5,000

Mrs. Magdalea Hollis, Dewey street, Homestead, who weighed about 250 pounds at the time a step gave way on a Pittsburgh Railways Company street car, precipitating her to the street, won a verdict for $5,000 in Judge Thomas D. Carnahan's Common Pleas Court. Mrs. Hollis was injured internally and otherwise hurt.

WOMAN, ILL, ATTEMPTS TO END LIFE BY POISON

Ill health prompted Mrs. Mary Silliznoff, 40, to drink a washing compound in an attempt to end her life in the bedroom of her home at 524 East Lacock street today, police reported. At the Allegheny General Hospital it was announced her condition was not serious.

THIRD STATE TROOPER IN MURDER CASE KILLS SELF

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 26.—(AP.)—Corp. Arthur Fox, of the state police, found shot to death in Huntingdon yesterday, was the third police officer assigned to the case of the murder of Lieut. Elwood Gainor, of the Lancaster police department, to end his own life with a bullet through his brain.

Maj. Lynn Adams, superintendent of the state police, today termed the three deaths a series of coincidences and declared that the fact that at least two of the men, Fox and Corp. Bernisky, Media, had committed suicide had been thoroughly substantiated. Bernisky resigned from the force before ending his own life. The other member of the trio was Harold Anderson, former chief of detectives of Lancaster, who although retired, gave his help in solving the case.

Fox, regarded as one of the best detectives on the state police force, was given most of the credit for pinning the Gainor murder on Joe Deano, New York gangster, who is reported to be the only member of the notorious "Little Augie" gang not now dead through gang wars or otherwise accounted for.

and believe the need for it is imperative, and never more desirable than now. Their attitude is shown in the closing paragraph of the resolution of withdrawal: "Be it further resolved: That we reaffirm our profound conviction as to the duty and value of co-operating with sister denominations in federated effort, and the need for a Council of Churches, here and elsewhere; that we withdraw with the deepest regret and do so only because our duty is clear to us in this matter."

The dignity and significance and value of the work of a council of churches is such in the opinion of the Board of Baptist Association that they believe they should no longer tolerate a condition which they consider is sacrificing the best interests of co-operative denominational work in the county.

Since the organization of the local council the Baptist representatives have been active and loyal supporters of the work. Probably no other members of the council have given more freely of their interest and time for its success.

Burn Dead In Ruined Florida

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Sept. 26.—(AP.)—While the ashes of funeral pyres still smouldered in parts of the Florida hurricane swept area today, an appeal had gone to the national headquarters of the American Red Cross at Washington for a fund of $12,000,000 to be subscribed by the American peope for permanently rehabilitating the devastated section.

Funeral fires cast a ghostly aspect over the Everglades in the Okeechobee section last night as workers cremated bodies washed up by the flood which followed the storm more than a week ago. Cremation was resorted to in an effort to improve sanitary conditions. In the Belle Glade section yesterday, 165 bodies were burned, it was reported here.

The appeal to the National Red Cross was made by the Palm Beach county chapter in a formal report of the hurricane's toll, which placed the number of refugees at 12,200, who lost their all in the blow and subsequent flood of Lake Okeechobee.

Intermittent showers during the week and heavy rains yesterday added to the discomfort of the residents.

Jaworski Once Honest Auto Agent

BUTLER, Pa., Sept. 26.—Paul Jaworski, bandit leader, who is in the Cleveland, O., jail, charged with murder and wanted in the Pittsburgh district for robbery and murder, at one time operated an automobile agency in Lyndora, a suburb. Persons who know Jaworski say he was strictly honest in all his dealings and that one time he paid the debt of a brother in order that no one could say that "a Jaworski owes anybody money around here." Neighbors of Jaworski say that he was extremely mild-mannered and gave no indication of developing into a dangerous bandit.

SMITH CHASING 1924 LAFOLLETTE VOTE

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,
International News Service.

BILLINGS, Mont., Sept. 26.—En route with Gov. Smith to Minneapolis, Sept. 26.—Gov. Smith swung into the heart of the progressive Northwest today, still hot on the trail of the LaFollette independent vote of 1924, which is necessary to his candidacy if it is to be successful west of the Mississippi River in November.

The Governor left Montana after two days, well satisfied. He entered North Dakota with hopes high.

"Montana looked all right to me," he told newspapermen as his train sped along. "But ask Senator Wheeler here—he knows more about the state than I do."

Senator Wheeler, vice presidential candidate on the La Follette ticket four years ago, said he was convinced Gov. Smith would carry Montana, North Dakota, Wisconsin and Minnesota six weeks hence, and possibly South Dakota.

GIVE REASONS

The hopes of the Smith managers for North Dakota are based primarily upon three factors. They are:

1—The great race that La Follette ran in the state four years ago. He came within 5,000 votes of carrying the state against Coolidge. The La Follette ticket polled 89,922 votes, as against 94,931 for Coolidge and 13,858 for Davis.

2—Gov. Walter Maddox, elected as lieutenant governor two years ago on a Republican-Nonpartisan League fusion ticket, now is standing for re-election as a Democrat and is heartily supporting Gov. Smith.

3—The dissatisfaction of the wheat farmers of the state over the present market price for their commodity.

ST. PAUL SPEECH

Tomorrow night in St. Paul, Gov. Smith will deliver the fifth major speech of his western trip. It is understood that it will be so framed as to attract the independent Progressive vote of this section.

"I haven't got it lined up yet," the Governor said today, when asked if he had decided upon his St. Paul speech.

It is believed he will speak on transportation and inland waterways at the twin cities. The twin cities stand at the head waters of the Mississippi River, and they as well as the great farming country that surrounds them are vitally interested in cheaper transportation.

Zeppelin To Tour U. S.

International News Service.

BERLIN, Sept. 26.—A large section of the United States will have an opportunity to see the world's biggest dirigible—the "Count Zeppelin"—in action when Dr. Hugo Eckener, director of the Zeppelin works, takes the balloon to the United States on a trans-Atlantic flight next month.

To a certain extent the American itinerary will depend upon the weather and the amount of time at the disposal of the Germans.

Tentative plans include visits to New York, Lakehurst, N. J., Washington, Boston, Detroit, and Chicago, and, possibly, a trip to Philadelphia, Syracuse and Cincinnati.

It had been reported that Dr. Eckener, who will be in charge of the airship, contemplated a flight across the American continent, possibly as far as Los Angeles or San Francisco, but it is doubtful if such an ambitious plan will be attempted.

MAY START OCT. 5

LAKEHURST, N. J., Sept. 26.—(INS.)—The new German commercial dirigible "Count Zeppelin," which was recently tested in the vicinity of Lake Constance, may leave Germany on October 5 for its proposed flight to Lakehurst, it was learned at the naval air station here today. This information was contained in a cablegram that has been received from Lieut. Com. Charles E. Rosendahl, commander of the dirigible Los Angeles, who went to Germany to study at the factory where the dirigible was made.

HOOVER'S "HANDS OFF" WILLEBRANDT SPEECHES

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—The Republican National Committee has adopted a "hands-off" policy, for the present, toward Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt and her single-handed prohibition crusade against the candidacy of Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

This became known today at Herbert Hoover's headquarters as the Republican nominee continued to work upon his Elizabethton, Tenn., speech. It was learned, too, that the Hoover advisers have split upon the question of curbing Mrs. Willebrandt or giving her a free rein in the campaign.

HOOVER'S HANDS OFF

Hoover personally has declared himself opposed to "personalities" in the campaign and frequently has announced himself in favor of conducting an affirmative campaign, based only upon the record, issues and policies of the Republican party. Mrs. Willebrandt has gone beyond this limitation, but the Hoover advisers have urged the nominee to let her case be handled by the National Committee, which is conducting his campaign. He has decided to follow this advice, it was said.

One decision reached by Dr. Hubert Work, national chairman, and his associates, however, was to discontinue the handling of the speeches in which she attacks the prohibition record of Gov. Smith. One of these speeches was given out at the committee's Chicago headquarters and afterwards an attempt was made to withdraw it. The committee, however, will not attempt to halt her speaking activities, at least, for the present.

Two things have deterred the movement to silence Mrs. Willebrandt.

First, she has made her own speaking engagements before ministerial associations, and second, she has the unqualified indorsement of Anti-Saloon League leaders in her crusade against Smith. Any move to curb her might alienate the dry league's leaders, who have sponsored her recent appearances in Ohio.

DIDN'T READ THEM—WORK

The public attitude of Hoover leaders toward Mrs. Willebrandt was well illustrated by Chairman Work in an interview given at Hoover headquarters, following a conference with the Republican nominee.

"What's the news today?" Work asked, in opening the interview.

"How about Mrs. Willebrandt?" one reporter asked. "She's always news. What have you to say about her speeches?"

"I have nothing to say about them or her," replied the chairman.

"What is her status?"

"She is an official of the Department of Justice," replied Work. "Sometimes she goes out on her own hook and sometimes the Chicago Speakers' Bureau sends her out. She's a sort of free lance."

"Does Walter Newton have charge of her speaking dates?"

"Yes, when she speaks for the committee."

"Do you approve of her speeches against Smith?"

"Do you mean the ones she has made or the ones she is going to make?"

"The ones she made," the reporter explained.

"Oh, I haven't read them." Work declared, "so I couldn't answer that question."

"Are her traveling expenses paid by the National Committee?"

"I don't know. Newton will have to answer that."

"Is it fair to assume that they are paid?"

"No, because we have more voluntary speakers than paid speakers."

"Well," said one correspondent, "you'll find her speeches interesting reading, when you get around to them."

"That will have to be after the campaign is ended," concluded Work.

A statement from national headquarters said:

"The Democratic effort to make prohibition the main issue in Wisconsin is failing completely, even in Milwaukee, as a result of Smith's Omaha speech, where he stated, 'The President can do nothing about liquor.' Originally, following the Democratic nominee's acceptance speech, there was a belief that he might miraculously do something about prohibition if elected. Now they realize they have been duped."

WORKER SHOOTS AT BOSS

Discharged for refusing to work overtime last night, it is alleged, Oscar Totzka, 32, a plumber, of 532 Thirteenth street, Braddock, returned later and fired a shot at Alvin Porterfield, foreman at the Mesta Machine Company plant, West Homestead.

The shot missed. Totzka was lodged in West Homestead Police Station charged with felonious shooting.

Rural N. Y. Swings to Hoover

By CHARLES N. WHEELER
(Noted Political Analyst.)

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—Doubt is raised as to whether Gov. Smith can hold his normal up-state strength in New York, as late figures are tabulated in the Hearst nation-wide poll.

Totals today indicate that Hoover is going to run much better outside of Greater New York than at first calculated. At the present rate of his gain, using the 1926 vote as a basis of comparison, he has a fair chance of wiping out Smith's big lead in the metropolitan area.

HOOVER STRONG

What the up-state figures totaled thus far disclose is that Hoover, by a large margin, is stronger than Mills, who was the last one to go up against the Smith buzzsaw. By the same token, it begins to look as if Smith is not going to be nearly as strong as a presidential candidate as he was running for governor.

These, at least, are the present indications and are more particularly underscored in the 10 counties forming the southeast end of the state surrounding the Greater New York territory.

These counties are Westchester, Nassau, Suffolk, Orange, Ulster, Delaware, Sullivan, Dutchess, Putnam and Rockland.

In former governorship campaigns, Smith carried Westchester and Rockland once and Sullivan county twice. The present poll points to an overwhelming lead for Hoover in these three counties this trip and a considerably larger vote in the other seven counties than normally registered by Republican candidates.

Westchester county, which butts up against the metropolitan area, developed a close race between Mills and Smith two years ago, with Mills finally winning it by the narrow margin of some 1,000 votes in a total of 116,000. Today's Hearst poll gives Hoover 2,938 to 1,440 for Smith, or a shade better than 2 to 1. While outdistancing Smith with the men vote, of which 584 were recorded for Hoover, the Republican candidate gets 77.4 per cent of the women vote.

Nassau county (Long Island) was carried by Mills by a vote of 36,152 to 24,721, or 3 to 2. Today's poll gives Hoover 1,251 to 696, or almost 2 to 1, with Hoover getting 64.7 per cent of the men vote and, 64.8 per cent of the women vote.

Suffolk county, east half of Long Island, was carried by Mills with a vote of 24,088 to 14,709, or less than 2 to 1. Yesterday's Hearst poll gives Hoover 1,296 to 492 for Smith, or upwards of 3 to 1, with 69.1 per cent of the men vote and 76.4 of the women.

ORANGE UNCHANGED

Orange county, adjacent to Westchester and Rockland on the northwest of the metropolitan area, was carried by Mills with a vote of 20,823 to 13,123. The straws give Hoover 991 to 554 for Smith, substantially the same Republican percentage as two years ago.

In Ulster county Hoover is displaying much greater strength than the normal party vote. Mills had 17,016 to 12,506 for Smith. The straw figures give Hoover 925 to 376 for Smith, approaching a 3-to-1 lead.

Mills carried Delaware county two years ago by a 3-to-1 margin. Today's poll gives Hoover the lead by a 6-to-1 margin. Mills has 10,752 to 5,912 for Smith. Hoover's vote today stood 707 to 121 for Smith.

Sullivan county, which Smith carried twice in his former campaigns, went to Mills by a vote of 7,103 to 5,308 for Smith, or 7 to 5. The Hearst poll gives Hoover 374 to than 2 to 1.

Dutchess county, with more of the New England leaning, was carried by Mills with a vote of 17,489 to 12,419 for Smith, or a ratio of less than 3 to 2, but today's figures in the straw vote show Hoover out in the lead almost 5 to 1, the figures being: Hoover, 1,719; Smith, 368.

It is in the manufacturing cities and in Erie county (Buffalo) that Gov. Smith seems to be holding his own. In some spots where the workers now think they should have the old brass rail and sawdust floor back again he is showing solid strength.

In Greater New York, however, Gov. Smith is maintaining his two to one lead in the straw vote, the totals this morning being, Smith, 32,917; Hoover, 16,932. The Governor, likewise, is ahead in the entire state vote with 69,349 to 68,338.

In this connection it may be of interest to note that of the 57 counties of the state outside of Greater New York, Smith has carried 14 at one time or another in his five gubernatorial campaigns. These are Westchester, Rockland, Sullivan, Albany, Renesselaer, Schenectady, Montgomery, Saratoga, Hamilton, Lewis, Oneida, Onondaga, Monroe and Erie.

In 1920, when he was defeated for governor by Miller, he failed to carry a single county outside of Greater New York. He carried Greater New York, of course, all five times; Rensselaer and Albany counties three times; Hamilton, Oneida and Sullivan, twice, and Westchester, Rockland, Schenectady, Montgomery, Saratoga, Lewis, Onondaga, Monroe and Erie, once.

Based on the present poll, Mr. Hoover might carry the entire 57 counties outside of Greater New York, although Gov. Smith is showing unwavering strength in Rensselaer, Albany and Erie counties.

ELECTRIC 'AGER' FOUND IN RAID

A saloon, a store and a residence were raided by prohibition agents last night. They reported seizing a still, mash, moonshine and an electric whisky-making machine.

In a two-story frame building at 583 Seagrit street, the raiders said they found a 10-gallon still, 42 100-gallon vats of mash and several barrels of wine. They arrested John B. Dellaquilla, 48, and released him on a $1,000 bail bond.

Oscar Whitfield, 32, a Negro of 615 Devilliers street, was lodged in Central Police station by the agents for investigation when they said, they found a whisky-making machine in his home.

Moonshine was reported consficated in a saloon at 1134 Brownsville road, where Alfred W. Frey, 48, was arrested, the agents said.

CANDIDATES HIT BY SOCIALIST

Verne L. Reynolds, candidate for president on the Socialist-Labor ticket, has no delusions about the White House. He says, "I haven't a ghost of a chance to win."

However, Reynolds, campaigning here, spoke last night in North Side Carnegie Hall. He accused Smith and Hoover of evading the real issue. If, he asked, there is the prosperity that the Republican candidate claims, "why are 8,000,000 men jobless?" Smith, Reynolds feels, would appease the people by setting up beer and wine legally when the same people have no trouble getting it today. His subject was, "Unemployment at the Peak of the Boom."

4 Dairies Merged Here

Four dairies have been merged to form the Liberty Dairy Products Corporation. It is reported that the new organization will be a nucleus for additional consoidations.

The Ohio & Pittsburgh Milk Company, which trades as the Hermes-Groves Dairy Company, the Shady Side Milk Company, the Reinhold Ice and Ice Cream Company and the Kittanning Pure Milk Company have been included in the combination.

The new organization will have total assets of over $2,600,000 and will do an annual business of over $4,000,000. The properties include four modern plants fully supplied with equipment for the production of ice cream, buttermilk, condensed milk and with facilities for retail distribution.

The owners of the four companies have accepted payment in common stock of the new organization. A local financial house will offer $1,000,000 of 7 per cent preferred stock for sale to the public within a few days.

The stock will be listed on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange.

In addition to the city plants the Liberty Dairy Products Corporation will also operate the Braeburn Certified Milk Farms and five country receiving and manufacturing plants.

Ernest Reinhold will be chairman of the board of directors of the new company. John R. Hermes will be president, B. H. Rodeniser, vice president, Paul E. Reinhold, vice president and general manager, W. W. Lapham, treasurer, and W. S. Wallace, secretary and assistant treasurer.

RICH CONTRACTOR ACCUSED OF BIGAMY MARRIAGE HERE

The alleged romance of a wealthy subway contractor of New York and a young and pretty actress, culminating in a wedding ceremony in McKeesport, resulted in the arrest yesterday in New York of James N. Chankalian on a charge of bigamy, according to advices received today from New York police.

Chankalian, a Syrian, reputed to possess powerful political influence in New York, was indicted by the grand jury here September 17. The charge was preferred by his son, Armand, of the staff of the United States attorney in New York City, on behalf of his mother, according to Attorney Frank J. Zappala, their local counsel.

As Louise Elizabeth Dilberian, she married Chankalian in Paterson, N. J., February 10, 1900, and two sons, Armand and Edward, now live with her at 615 West One Hundred and Sixty-second street, New York. The prosecution alleges that Chankalian, despite his marriage, entered into a marriage ceremony December 30, 1924, at McKeesport, with Nora Jackson, a New York actress, according to Zappala.

He said this marriage was annulled by the New York courts in July, 1927.

PLANE HUNTS RANIERI KIDNAPERS' FARM

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—Billy Ranieri, 10-year-old Italian boy kidnaped by Mafia terrorists and held hostage for more than two weeks for a ransom of $60,000, will have his first airplane ride here today.

In a huge 12-passenger plane, Billy and his father, accompanied by Chicago police and prosecutors, will fly over Cook county looking for the farmhouse where the boy was held captive by his Sicilian abductors.

Though the boy described his prison as a farmhouse because of the presence of cows and mules, police today learned that the house was merely in an outlying section of the city.

Meanwhile, new indictments were returned by the grand jury against three of the alleged kidnapers, Angelo Pettiti, Pasquale Capotosto and Salvatore Mastroiani.

The indictments are based on the story of Michael Devito. According to Devito's statement, he is one of a score of Italian fathers who have paid tribute to the Mafia extortionists as the price of safety for their children.

SHIPPERS TALK RAIL RATES

A committee on rate construction and tariffs of the National Industrial League met yesterday in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium to discuss the adoption of uniform and standard railroad freight tariff rules. Representatives of many large corporations and of several chambers of commerce were present. The same group will meet again in New York on or before November 15.

2,000 TONS OF DYNAMITE TO BE SET OFF AT ONCE

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 26.—Approximately 40,000 pounds of dynamite will be used to loosen 20,000 tons of rock at Nessle, tomorrow in what is said to be the largest blast ever attempted in the eastern section of the United States. Officials of the Pittsburgh Limestone Company, which owns the Nessle quarries, will witness the blast, and motion pictures will be made. Preparations for the gigantic explosion have been in the making for three months. They include drilling six-inch holes, which, if put together, would cover a mile.

Mexico Elects Gil

International News Service.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 26.—Emilio Portes Gil, secretary of the interior in the Calles cabinet, will become provisional president of Mexico on December 1, during a joint session of the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies last night, he was unanimously elected to succeed President Calles by 277 members of Congress present.

When he takes the oath of office Gil will be the youngest man ever to have become president of Mexico. He is only 37. He will serve until February 5, 1920.

The balance of the full term of six years ending November 30, 1934, will be served by a constitutional president who will be elected at extraordinary elections to be held the end of November, 1929.

Gil's election was widely acclaimed by both the Senators and Deputies who also cheered President Calles and the name of the late president-elect, Gen. Alvaro Obregon.

Despite his youth, Gil has had a long and active public career. He is said to have liberal views and a great regard for the friendship of the United States. During his two terms as Governor of the state of Tamaulipas, he showed great activity in curbing vice conditions, improving child welfare and establishing unusual liberty of the press within the state.

"Comfortable" Busses! -:- Pittsburghers—Some of Us—Pay 25c to Stand -:- Types in Use Today

COACH COMPANY

Here is one of the types of busses in use today by the Pittsburgh Coach Company, which terms its cars "comfortable." The fare is 25 cents from downtown to East Liberty.

LATER MODEL

This is perhaps the company's latest model among its single-motored busses. This car runs from downtown Pittsburgh to Mt. Lebanon and the fare, again, is a quarter. Here, the bus stops for a young woman passenger at a curbstone stop, downtown.

EAST LIBERTY ROUTE

Again the East Liberty route. This model car is the most common on the East Liberty run. As the car leaves downtown, there were "standees" and they paid 25 cents! They travel, it is said, in comfort!

TWIN-COACH

Here we have the twin-coach, which has two motors. This model is the pride of the company, but all its cars are not like this. You will notice here, too, "standees" as this bus was ready to leave downtown for Wilkinsburg.

JAIL 23 IN PHILA. GRAFT PROBE

POLICE TO BE ARRAIGNED TODAY ON BRIBERY CHARGE

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 26.—Twenty-three Philadelphia policemen, arrested and jailed last night on charges of bribery, extortion and conspiracy as the climax of the grand jury investigation of the city's "rum ring," were to be arraigned today before Judge Edwin O. Lewis. District Attorney John Monaghan said they had confessed that they had participated in a grafting scheme which had yielded thousands of dollars in the Fourth street and Snyder avenue precinct.

District Attorney Monaghan declared the extent of grafting by police in that district was "tremendous." He said it was the worst scandal yet uncovered in the investigation of conditions resulting from bootleggers' activities.

The arrested men were lodged in a cell at the City Hall. There were one police captain, seven sergeants, 13 patrolmen and three detectives. Federal agents found their names in a "little black book" confiscated in a raid.

These wholesale arrests came on the heels of the surrender of State Representative Matthew Patterson, political leader of the Nineteenth Ward, in the district attorney's office, to answer charges of extortion and bribery. He waived a hearing and was held in $15,000 bail.

At the same time Joel D. Kerper, "society bootlegger," pleaded guilty to violating the prohibition laws. Previously he had denied his guilt. He will be sentenced on Friday.

Weather Conditions.

The lake region disturbance which produced the cloudiness and showery conditions over this section yesterday afternoon and early last night moved rapidly eastward to the North Atlantic coast, and the Northwest high followed closely in its wake. The low pressure area produced light showers over all the Lake region and eastward to the coast, while the high caused a drop in temperature to the lowest on record for September, over the Ohio Valley states and the lower Lake region, resulting in heavy deposits of frost generally, and the formation of ice in the northern counties of Western Pennsylvania. Another high pressure area has made its appearance over the Canadian Northwest. It is not causing a further drop in temperature over that section, but it is maintaining the already far below freezing temperatures.

River Conditions.

There was little change in the river stages during the last 24 hours. Stage at Pittsburgh is 9.9 feet; Dam No. 2, 8.5, and Dam No. 6, 7.2 feet. The dams are up.

The visitors will attend a luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce today when T. P. Gaylord, its president, will officially welcome them.

COULD NOT GET OUT OF BED

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Strengthened Her

Elkhart, Ind.—"I had a tired feeling and was unable to get out of bed without the help of my husband. We heard of the Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. I am still taking it and it sure is a help to me. I can do my work without resting before I am through. I know that if women will give the Vegetable Compound a trial they can overcome those tired and worn-out feelings. I cannot express the happiness I have received and how completely it has made over my home."—Mrs. D. H. Street, 1326 Laurel St., Elkhart, Indiana.

3 SICK CHILDREN, FATHER FOUND STARVING IN ROOM

Huddled in a bed in their one-room dwelling on the third floor of 6342 Station street, three sick children and their father were taken in charge by police today.

John J. O'Donnell, the father, 42, a painter, told Police Lieut. John A. Jones, of Frankstown avenue station, that he had worked only three days in the last six weeks. His wife, he asserted, had left Saturday night with a fourth child, John J. Jr., 2. The children whom the father tried to care for are Edward, 6, Joseph 16 months, and Leanna, 4.

Taxicab drivers had been carrying food to the family, the police learned, while the father stayed at the bedside of the children. Lieut. Jones summoned a city physician and notified the Public Welfare Department.

THAW AUTO IN COLLISION

Four persons received lacerations when an automobile owned by Mrs. Mary Thaw, of 1165 Beechwood boulevard, collided with another machine near the Thaw home last night, police reported today. The injured were Mrs. Thaw's chauffeur and nurse, James Humphrey and Mary O'Neil, and Mr. and Mrs. Lindley Murray, of 6827 McPherson boulevard.

The Murray machine was backing out of a driveway when the cars collided, according to police. No arrests were made.

The bridge approach brings the flow of traffic into Fifth avenue, the main thoroughfare of McKeesport. Slight changes made to help the situation have brought many complaints and the police appealed to council for help.

HELP OFFERED ALL SEEKING 1,170 ZAIN AD-TEST PRIZES

into an ad-writing test from which professional advertising men are barred.

Co-operation was the keynote of the meeting. The spirit was exemplified by the Harris Amusement Company, one of the co-operating companies, in sending a group of first-class entertainers from the Harris Theater to the luncheon. A hearty vote of thanks was given Jack Ryan, master of ceremonies; Lew White and Company, the Four Aristocrats and Bert and Kenneth Kennedy for their fine entertainment. All are playing at the Harris Theater this week.

How interesting the Ad-Test is, entirely apart from the inducement of $15,000 worth of prizes, may be gathered from some of the remarks made by speakers at the luncheon. Mention was made of a multi-millionaire who wrote an ad just to see if he could, and of an extremely prominent society woman who got into the game just for the fun of the thing.

NEW WRINKLE FOR PARTIES

Writing ads for the Zain test is going to be a very popular amusement during the next six weeks throughout the territory in which The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph circulates.

It is going to be a favorite pastime for parties, a refreshing substitute for card games and the other customary amusements. The guests will be invited to write ads for the Zain test. You can be sure there will be keen enjoyment and really worth-while mental stimulation in comparing them and discussing their merits.

All written on these occasions, whether considered of poor quality or not, should be sent to the Zain Ad-Writing Test, care of The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.; for those that you think are not very good may be judged differently by the committee that chooses the prize-winners.

In the family circle, too, the writing of ads for the Zain test will prove a delightful way to spend the evening. Let every member of the family write a lot of ads, and send in every one.

The ads must be written about the co-operating companies and their products and services. A list of these companies will be found elsewhere on this page.

NO CHANGE IN LIST

This list will be the same throughout the campaign. There will be no changes in the companies.

To be eligible for the $1,000 prize it is essential that you should write at least one ad about each of the 39 concerns some time during the campaign.

You will find the rules for the Zain Ad-Test on this page. Read them carefully. Keep constantly in mind that professional advertising men are barred from the test and that ideas count more than anything else, so that YOU STAND AS GOOD A CHANCE OF WINNING A PRIZE AS ANYBODY ELSE.

You don't have to know anything about "layouts," type or technical matters to write a first-class ad. A letter, a phrase, a slogan, verses, or a simple statement of facts may win a prize.

If nothing better occurs to you, write your ad in the form in which you would recommend the store or its goods to a friend.

The Sun-Telegraph will help you by calling your attention every day or so to some of the outstanding things in the companies that are co-operating in the test.

HINTS FOR AD-WRITERS

In writing a Zain ad about Graham-Paige motor cars, featured by E. S. Carpenter, Inc., 4615 Baum boulevard, and associated dealers, you will have a wealth of interesting material from which to draw powerful selling points.

Take the model 610, for example. No one who inspects one of these beautiful cars and becomes acquainted with its power and smoothness of operation can fail to be enthusiastic.

Its motor develops 52 horsepower, assuring great speed if desired; yet it can be brought quickly and safely to a stop with its four-wheel hydraulic brakes. Its low price will also inspire you to write a good ad.

In preparing to write an ad about the Mausoleum, "the Westminster Abbey of Pittsburgh," you will do well to familiarize yourself with this "Cathedral of Rest." It is in Mt. Royal Cemetery, on the Butler Pike road, and is an imposing edifice of granite, marble and bronze.

The Mausoleum Construction Company, in the Empire Building, erected the edifice, of which it has been well said: "Here, in pastoral setting, the tragic sting of death may be softened as far as it is humanly possible—for the snow-white crypts in the Abbey sustain the thought of the life that was and the life that is to come."

Every person with common sense knows how valuable title insurance is. Title insurance and a real estate purchase go together, to create complete satisfaction and protection to those making such a purchase.

When you get title insurance you receive the opinion of the title company that your right to ownership in the property you buy—your home, for example—is secure, and at the same time you are insured against loss in case the title company should be mistaken.

The Potter Title and Mortgage Guarantee Company, Fourth avenue and Grant street, renders this service. You ought to find it easy to write a convincing and interesting ad about this company.

You will learn something worth knowing if, when writing your ad about the United Laundries, 1260 Chateau street, North Side, you inquire about the service rendered by these laundries and the way in which they wash and dry-clean clothing and other household articles.

They put out a booklet describing their operations that is far more interesting than many magazine articles, and is very instructive. You will learn much about fabrics and the proper way to launder them if you will find out how the United Laundries do it.

The Zain ads about the United Laundries should emancipate a multitude of women from the drudgery of family washing.

INVESTIGATE PRODUCTS

Palmer's Strikalite Matches present not a few good qualities that can be turned to excellent account in writing your Zain ad about them. For one thing, the match sticks, chemically treated to prevent afterglow, are made of well-seasoned pine and will not splinter or break when striking.

They are first-class matches, and if you are not already acquainted with them you should get some. Their safety, no less than their efficiency, will appeal to you, and you will take satisfaction in recommending them in your ad.

No breakfast could be more satisfactory these cold mornings than one of Dunlevy's pork sausage. For that matter, a better, more appetizing or more nourishing breakfast could not be planned for any day in the year.

Eat some of this sausage, which is made fresh every day of selected ham and loin cuttings from young corn-fed pigs less than one year old, and spiced and seasoned just right, according to an old-fashioned farm formula. Look for the white tag on every pound of this delicious meat. It is put up in five and 10-pound cartons.

Then visit the Dunlevy-Franklin Company's plant in East Liberty and see how clean everything and everybody is that has anything to do with the making of the sausage. You will be welcome. You will have no trouble writing an ad for Dunlevy's pork sausage.

OVER 1,000 PRIZES

You will find a list of the 1,170 prizes and how they are to be awarded elsewhere on this page.

Try for the $100 prize during each period. Try for the prizes offered for the best ads about each of the 39 co-operating companies. Keep on trying. Don't be discouraged. Practice makes perfect. You will improve from week to week.

Write on only one side of a sheet of paper, using a separate sheet for each ad. Let your paper be at least as large as a postal card. On the back of each sheet write your name and address.

Boneless Chicken Pie with Mushrooms

IMAGINE a plump chicken cooked along with a pert, fragrant onion, a young carrot like a golden cornucopia of delicate flavor, and celery, crisp and succulent.

Think of fresh mushrooms, cooked with butter and a few stimulating drops of lemon juice. Crisp bacon. Firm white potatoes.

Picture a savory sauce of butter and flour and fresh chicken broth, seasoned with lemon.

And then imagine the meat of that young, juicy chicken imprisoned steaming hot along with that sauce and those flavorous mushrooms and bacon and potatoes, under a flaky golden crust that fairly melts in your mouth!

That is Chicken Pie Pennsylvania.

It is only one of the dishes that is making the Pennsylvania diners more popular every day. You can have it—or one of the many others—on the Pennsylvania trains all of this week.

Boneless Chicken Pie Pennsylvania. It's a dish for an epicure!

SUN-TELEGRAPH COOK SCHOOL RECIPES

Here are more of the recipes that Mrs. Edna Riggs Crabtree, expert in home economics, demonstrated last Friday afternoon in The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Free Cooking School.

PRIZE UPSIDE DOWN CAKE.

Canned apricots.
2 cups sifted flour.
2 teaspoons baking powder.
½ cup shortening.
1 cup sugar.
2 eggs.
½ cup milk.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
2 teaspoons shortening.
1 cup brown sugar.

Drain juice from fruit. Sift flour and baking powder together twice. Cream shortening, add sugar. Cream well. Add beaten yolks of eggs, add flour and milk alternately, mixing well. Fold in beaten egg whites and vanilla. Melt 2 tablespoons shortening in large frying pan and spread brown sugar over pan. Arrange apricots to cover bottom of pan. Pour cake batter over fruit; bake in moderate oven 360 degrees F. about 45 minutes. Turn upside down on serving dish and garnish. Whipped cream may be spread over top.

DATE PUDDING.

1 cup sugar.
1 cup dry bread crumbs.
1 teaspoon baking powder.
1 egg.
2-3 cup milk.
28 dates (stoned and chopped).
1 cup nut meats.
1 tablespoon shortening.

Mix sugar, crumbs and baking powder. Beat egg and milk and combine two mixtures. Add dates and nuts. Pour into a greased tin and bake in slow oven 35 to 40 minutes. Cut in squares and top with whipped cream.

MEAT FRITTERS.

1 cup chopped cold meat.
1 tablespoon chopped onions.
1 tablespoon chopped parsley.
¼ teaspoon pepper.
1 cup bread flour.
1 egg beaten.
2 teaspoons baking powder.
½ teaspoon salt.
½ cup milk.

Beat egg, add milk, then flour and baking powder sifted together. Beat smooth. Add remaining ingredients. Mix well. Drop by spoonfuls into fat heated until a small piece of bread browns in 60 seconds. Fry until browned and thoroughly cooked. Drain on brown paper. Serve with left-over gravy or cream sauce seasoned with a little Worcestershire sauce.

FRIED DEVILED EGGS.

Cut hard boiled eggs lengthwise. Remove the yolks. Mash them; season well with salt and pepper. Moisten with salad dressing and put in the white part. Roll the half egg in beaten egg, then in cracker crumbs. Fry in deep fat. Drain on soft paper and serve hot or cold, with or without a cream sauce.

RAID YIELDS EVIDENCE ON SLOT MACHINE KING

When Albert W. Forney, confessed king of the slot machine racket, is released from the county jail, where he is serving a six-month sentence for violating the prohibition laws he will be met at the jail door by a warrant in the hands of Charles W. Collins, crusader of the Children's Service Bureau.

The warrant will charge Forney with maintaining a shop for the repair of slot machines. It is based on the raid which Collins led yesterday on a building at 10 Painter way, North Side, where machines and tools were uncovered.

The warrant was issued, Collins said today, by Alderman George B. Shields, whose constables helped make the raid. Collins also said he had tired of waiting for Public Safety Director James M. Clark to order the raid, although Clark knew of the place.

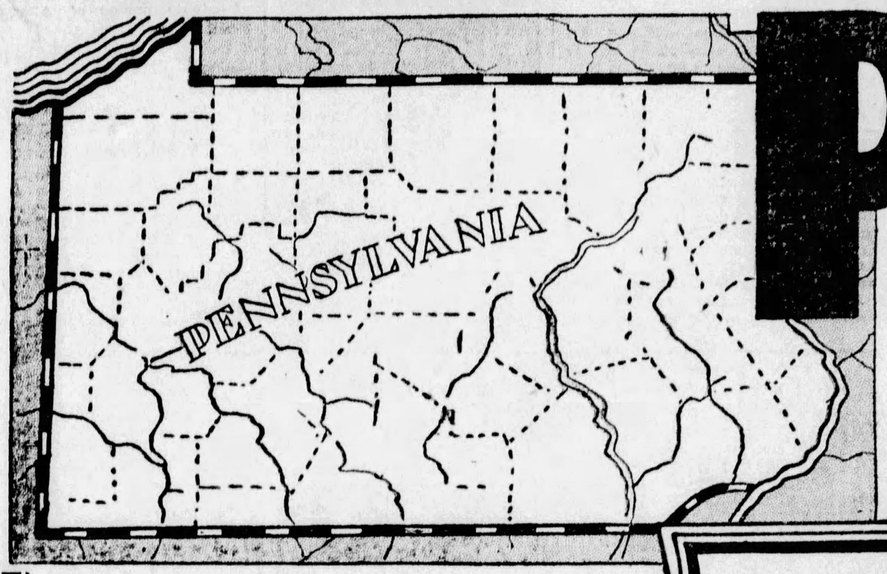
TOMORROW!-AT ROSENBAUM'S
A FEATURE OF OUR 60TH ANNIVERSARY
PENNSYLVANIA DAY



Thursday! When We Will Feature Merchandise Made in Our State

Pennsylvania Day is set aside to feature a portion of our merchandise which is made in the state of Pennsylvania. This showing is representative of the extensive purchases made within the Commonwealth. Pennsylvania Day is a tangible move to show our confidence in the industrial worth of the Keystone State. A vote of allegiance to its commerce. A demonstration of our belief in its future worth. Many of the items listed carry special prices. Another proof of our efforts to increase the buying power of the Pittsburgh dollar.

FACTS!

Settled in October of 1682 by William Penn and his Quaker adherents, the original three counties have grown to 67, the total area of the state, 44,832 square miles. . . . Said to be one of the most beautiful states in the Union, with over 100,000 miles of splendid highways, rural roads and railroads. . . . The population 8,720,017, is over 8% of the total population of the United States. . . . With 13,875 school buildings, the education of its people is not neglected. Very close to two million pupils are enrolled in its elementary and high schools . . . The magnitude of the business activities of this great state is almost unbelievable. In the manufacturing industries, alone, exclusive of the commercial and public utilities companies, there are employed over one and a half million people, whose combined earning capacity is almost 2¼ billions of dollars. The capital invested is over 5 billions, and the value of the manufactured products is over 8½ billions. . . . A state rich in natural resources, Pennsylvania is known the world over for its iron and steel production, its coal, gas, oil and allied products. Over 25% of the coal production of the country comes from Pennsylvania . . . In addition, it is famous for manufacturing Brick, Tile, Paints, Glass, Radium, Electric Equipment, Aluminum, Linoleums, Telescope Lenses, Asbestos Products, Canned Goods, Textiles, Paper Pulp Machinery, Locomotives and many hundreds of other products which contribute to the world's markets.

CAR DISPUTE TO TEST TRACTION BOARD POWER

ONE-MAN CREW THREAT TO STRIKE TAKEN UP

A thorough study of all phases of the one-man car controversy between the Pittsburgh Railways Company and the street car men will be made before any recommendation is forthcoming, Charles A. Finley, chairman of the Traction Conference Board, announced today.

City Council yesterday turned the whole question over to the Conference Board, following a hearing of both sides. The possibility of a strike was broached by P. J. McGrath, secretary of the car men, who intimated the placing of between 200 and 250 men, many of them veterans, on the "extra" list might lead to a break.

"I have begun a study of the data submitted by City Council," said Finley, but have fixed no date for a meeting of the board."

Chairman Finley indicated that the one-man car dispute may provide the first real test of the powers of the Conference Board, created under a 10-year agreement between the city and the Pittsburgh Railways Company, to have a voice in operation of the company and settlement of disputes.

At the Council hearing yesterday Vice-President Thomas Fitzgerald of the railways company contended the extension of the one-man car operation was necessary to curtail expenses in the face of a $56,000 deficit this year.

Representatives of the car men insisted that one-man cars result in slower service, are unsafe and provide less revenue than the two-man type.

REAL ESTATE PROSPECT KILLED; COMPANY SUED

Because his mother was killed in an automobile accident while being brought back to Pittsburgh by a real estate man from inspecting property for sale in Crawford county, Joseph A. Houston filed suit for $25,000 damages in Common Pleas Court yesterday against John White and the Pittsburgh City Garden Company. White, an officer of the company, was driving when it is alleged the steering gear broke, wrecking the car against a pole, August 18, 1927, near Greenville, Pa.

SUPREME COURT HEARS APPEAL CASES

Arguments in nine cases appealed from the courts of Western Pennsylvania counties were argued in the State Supreme Court, now sitting in Pittsburgh, yesterday. They included:

W. F. Smith against D. E. Brown, of Brookville, Jefferson county; a dispute over the alleged joint ownership of a gas well.

Milwaukee Locomotive Manufacturing Company against the Point Marion Coal Company, a suit to recover the purchase price of a locomotive sold to the coal company and wrecked by an engineer furnished by the locomotive company to instruct the coal company's employes how to operate it.

Chester S. Allen, trading as the West Penn Oil Company, against receivers of the North Penn Refining Company, Warren county; dispute over the sale of corporate assets.

Warren Savings Bank and Trust Company against Ella Foley, executrix; petition to open judgment for $32,400.

Nick Bankovich against the Westmoreland Coal Company; injured employe dispute compensation award.

M. M. Hurst, administrator, against George M. Spotts, Lancaster county; a suit to recover $2,500,000 in the nature of a dower.

Mary O. Hiles against the Hecla Coal and Coke Company, Fayette county; suit for compensation by a widow whose husband was drowned, he having last been seen alive working on his employer's property, and whose body was found in river abutting employer's property.

C. S. Small et al. against S. E. Smith et al., Venango county; suit over an accounting of Penn-Cities Oil Company.

George G. Peraing against Citizens Traction Company, Venango county; suit to recover $20,000 damages by an injured employe.

WAR ON HORN-BLOWING URGED BY PA. AUTO HEAD

HARRISBURG, Sept. 26.—In the interest of public welfare and comfort the promiscuous sounding of automobile horns must be curbed, according to S. Edward Gable, president of the Pennsylvania Motor Federation. Mr. Gable said today he believes more than 75 per cent of the horn blowing and other noises made by motor vehicles on the streets and highways of Pennsylvania are unnecessary.

"With the motor car age there naturally came additional noises on the streets of towns and cities," said the Federation president. "But in the general process of refinement of motor cars the manufacturers have done away with virtually all the noise of operation and, in addition, have added so many safety devices that even the sounding a horn has come to be considered, except in a few instances, unessential to careful driving. Yet we still have with us considerable noise, particularly in the sounding of horns, much of which is without cause and gives indication of careless and thoughtless driving, rather than of caution.

"The driver himself can eliminate this nuisance, so disturbing to the town and city dweller, but if he fails to do so the authorities must step in and, in the interest of public welfare and comfort, take steps to curb it. No longer is the raucous sounding of horns or other warning signal at every intersection considered essential to careful driving. The experienced operator seldom has occasion to use his horn and, when that occasion arises, sounds it in a way that does not offend.

"The law requires," said Mr. Gable, "that every motor vehicle 'shall be equipped with a horn or other warning device, in good working order, capable of emitting sound audible under normal conditions from a distance of not less than 200 feet,' these to be used under certain specified conditions. On the other hand, however, that same law provides that it shall be unlawful for anyone operating a vehicle thus equipped 'to use a horn or other warning device otherwise than as a reasonable warning, or to make any unnecessary or unreasonably loud or harsh sound by means of a horn or other warning device.'

"This gives the authorities ample opportunity to campaign against the horn driver—the man or woman behind the wheel who, lulled to a false sense of safety through use of the horn, sounds a shrill blast at every intersection, steps on the gas and feels sure that the other fellow will heed the warning and keep out of the way. Horn driving, as this method of operation is commonly called, not only gives rise to disturbing noises, but is unsafe, and the driver who repeatedly resorts to this method is a menace on our streets and highways."

CRUSHED TO DEATH BY FALLING STONE

MERCER, Pa., Sept. 26.—William E. Trevitt, Jr., 30, near Stoneboro, was crushed to death yesterday when a large stone which he was attempting to bury fell on him.

NURSES PLEDGE HOSPITAL FUND

Graduate nurses of Allegheny General Hospital pledged $16,000 of their $25,000 fund for the new hospital, at a dinner attended by 200 of the 600 association members last night. The association pledged $5,000 and several classes pledged $1,000. The nurses will form teams when the $5,000,000 building fund drive gets under way.

Among the speakers were Dr. E. B. Heckel, Miss W. E. Scheidemann, president of the association; Miss Lottie A. Darling, superintendent of nurses, and C. F. Holdship, of the trustees of the institution.

STAGE AND SCREEN ACTIVITIES DETAILED IN PICTURES AND GOSSIP ABOUT PLAYERS

Interesting News Notes From Studios of Hollywood Combined With Announcements of Local Amusements

Extra Man of Short Time Ago To Be Colleen Moore's Lead In Her Film, "Synthetic Sin"

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 928, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 23.

COLLEEN MOORE finally has chosen a leading man to her liking. He is James Ford. Remember, I told you the other day that he was an extra not very long ago, and then Corinne Griffith liked his work so well that he got his big chance in "The Divine Lady." He made good, and Corinne signed him to a five-year contract. He worked in "Outcast" and then with Alice White in "Ritzie Rosie." And now he has vaulted to the high estate of leading man for one of the biggest money-makers among the Hollywood stars.

Colleen's picture, as you know, is "Synthetic Sin," a screen adaptation of the stage comedy. William Seiter, who moved over from Universal to become First National's directorial ace, will handle the megaphone. Colleen and her husband, John McCormick, have given numerous young players their starts to fame. Loretta Young, Donald Reed and Jack Stone are among the players who thank the couple for their chance. And Mervyn LeRoy appreciates the fact that McCormick gave him his first opportunity to direct.

"Buster" Keaton will bring his unsmiling countenance next to the screen in a story called "Spite Marriage." The picture will go into production in the very near future. As soon, in fact, as a cast can be assembled to support the "Dead Pan" comic in his latest laugh-provoker. "Buster" has only recently returned from a vacation rest and is now "rarin' to go" on his new production.

Joan Crawford will follow her success in "Dancing Daughters" with another picture, the story of which emanates from the same author, Josephine Lovett. This now is known as "The Brass Band," and it will be directed by Jack Conway before Jack takes the megaphone to do Bill Haines new one, "The Gob." Whether "The Brass Band" is a tale of a musical aggregation, or a phoney wedding ring, remains to be seen.

Over on the Columbia lot they have signed Don Alvarado, recent hero of Lya De Putti's picture, "The Scarlet Lady," to play opposite Margaret Livingston in "Apache," a yarn of the Parisian underworld. Columbia also will make another Arsene Lupin story which is to be called "The Lone Wolf's Daughter." Of course, Bert Lytell, the "Lone Wolf," himself, will play the lead, and if they can secure her, Gertrude Olmstead will be the girl. Al Rogell has been signed to direct a picture, and quite probably this will be it.

"Innocents in Paris" is the tentative title of the first picture to be made for Paramount by the French Music Hall artist, Maurice Chevalier. Harry d'Arrast, who had such success in directing Adolphe Menjou, is scheduled to handle the megaphone on this one.

Paul Lukas (the "Hungarian Barrymore," he is called) recently went hammer-and-tongs after a role in "The Wolf of Wall Street," in which George Bancroft and Baclanova will play the leading roles. It is to be a talkie, and everyone at Paramount was afraid that Lukas' lack of English would make it impossible for him to play the part. Paul, however, took home a script, sat up all night with a tutor, and in the morning appeared before Ben Schulberg and recited the lines word for word. He got the job.

Louella O. Parsons, motion picture editor of Universal Service, gave Hollywood one of its greatest thrills the other evening by winning a "Momart" dance contest and an immense silver cup. The noted writer's partner in tripping the light fanastic was none other than George Bancroft, who used to be a "Hoover" before he became a "heavy." The cup was presented by Belle Bennett, who told Louella that if she ever tires of writing movie news she can win fame as a Hollywood dance instructor.

"Badges," a Max Marcin crook drama, will be translated into a screen vehicle and produced by Fox Films as Earle Foxe's next offering. Opposite the villainous Earle, who spends his spare time writing lyrics for "Dream House" and other hits, will be Carmel Myers, who has just completed her Metro film, "Adrienne Lecouvre." "Badges" will be all movietone, with dialogue as well as sound effects.

Anita Stewart, in Reno, wires friends that she is seeking a fourth hand at bridge, at which she is whiling away the time until she receives her "declaration of independence" from "Rudy" Cameron. Some of the boys and girls are considering getting divorces just so they may be enabled to play bridge with Anita.

Marie Prevost and Ben Lyon will be back from Idaho this week and promise to bring back with them a sack of those big Idaho potatoes. Providing, of course, that there is room in the 'plane. Yes, they're flying. All Hollywood is flying everywhere these days. The chauffeurs are being sent to flying school by stars who have their own 'planes in order.

When "Rodeo Romance" is completed, Gary Cooper and Fay Wray will be teamed again in a picture called "Haunting Melody." Gary, by the way, is the latest "secret sorrow" of half of the girls in Hollywood. But there are enough left in the other half to keep the rest of the boys from worrying over feminine companionship.

EVEN IN FILMS -:- GIRLS -:- WILL BE GIRLS

Marion Davies, Constance Talmadge, Bebe Daniels and Mary Pickford, for instance. The others visit Miss Daniels in the studio where she is making "Take Me Home," and they proceed to discuss — not acting — Mary's famous bob.

And Ruth Elder, who makes her screen debut with Richard Dix in "Moran of the Movies," mourns and moons, whereas every man knows flat tires need first a lot of cuss words.

And here we see her trying to pretty up an airplane motor. Yet, as she flew almost across the Atlantic we presume she ought to know what the pesky thing really needs.

MIDNITE SHOW FOR RED CROSS

In the Academy Friday night there will be a speecial midnight show, the entire proceeds of which will be turned over to the Red Cross fund for the relief of sufferers in the Florida-West Indies storm. Performers in the current Academy attraction, "Sugar Babies," as well as from other stages, will take part. There will be similar benefits the same night in all of the 45 theaters playing Mutual Burlesque attractions.

George Jaffe, manager of the Academy, states that all of the money received will go to the Red Cross, as all employes have donated their services, and that, whatever the amount may be, he will duplicate it as a personal donation to swell the benefit receipts.

Death Prediction; Knives, Figure in Divorce Case

When his wife told him "You are going to die young," then pitched a handful of knives and forks at him, Elmer G. Brazell decided, he testified, it was time to quit Florence Brazell, whom he is suing for divorce. The Brazells were married in 1924. Brazell said their life was a stormy one, when he testified at the hearing yesterday. Mrs. Brazell did not appear at the trial to present her denials made after the husband filed suit.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE BALANCE

By EVA WIEDNER.

"IF a woman loves a man, she is willing to give up everything and follow him for better or for worse," John West said in a tone which was final.

"If a man loves a woman, he is willing to give up everything and cling to her for better or for worse," Julia Tate answered.

"But a man must work—do the work he is fitted to do, and for which he has been trained—to keep his wife and family."

"A man must work, and a woman must weep—"

"Nonsense!" he said impatiently.

"It would amount to that, John, if I followed you to Africa. The modern girl has not been trained to weep. My life has been intellectual and social, and you can scarcely expect me to go where I shall not see a white face all day, unless I sit before a mirror. I'd grow so narrow that you would cease to love me. I have been trained to work, too, and I shall remain where I can use my brain."

So John West went to Africa and built good bridges in wild, dangerous places; Julia Tate remained in her own world and made a success of life as an illustrator. She missed John and many times she was tempted to go to him, but to yield to the old biological instinct meant to destroy the very basis on which she had built her life. She had a talent for drawing just as John had a talent for building bridges. Life meant work and love, but often one had to yield to the other.

The silence between them had never been broken through the years as each struggled and worked to obtain an end. Time softened the smart of the wounds, but neither married. Julia never doubted that she had made the right choice; John felt that she had failed him in his hour of need.

Then John West built a bridge that brought him great renown as an engineer. After this success he decided to go home for a visit. It was then that he learned of Julia Tate and the work she was doing. Her name was on many lips. They spoke of her valuable contribution to science. His questions brought the truth.

"She is a great illustrator," he was told. "She can draw the most minute parts accurately and with an intelligence beyond value. Dr. Mack, the great specialist, engaged her to make the drawings for the book he is writing on the human body and its diseases. She has stood beside him with pad and pencil while he operated, experimented with microbes and did other things known only to the profession. One day during a delicate operation she made an invaluable discovery and was able to establish proof with the delicate drawings she had copied so accurately. With her drawings and her discovery, she shares the honors of the great work with Dr. Mack."

John West's mind went back to the girl he had tried to bury in the African wilds. In his bitterness, he had criticized her as being unworthy of his love. For a woman to even hesitate in a choice between love and work had seemed to him hard and unfeminine. But now as he thought of what she had accomplished, her gift to science, he felt the weakness of his own judgment.

"Should a gifted woman sacrifice herself to the old biological instinct which places love before all else?" he questioned.

He admitted to himself that very often woman paid a great price for love—a love that did not last—that cast her off and sometimes disgraced her. Yet, everyone had urged her to cast her all upon the altar and take a gambler's chance. A woman must be uprooted and taken wherever a man choose to go. He had gone to Africa to do his work; love did not hold him back, but he had expected it of her. He felt now that it would heve been a great waste.

Then one evening he met Julia Tate at a dinner given in honor of himself. His pulse quickened as he saw her across the room. A charming, graceful, up-to-date woman who carried her years lightly. She was overflowing with abundant life and a happiness which stimulated those around her. His old dream returned. He had built his bridges successfully and no barrier stood between them now. Africa belonged to the past. He was willing to remain where Julia's work called her. That she had remained unmarried seemed to him significant. The dream deepened.

Julia didn't know him when at last they met. She was looking for a brown head and laughing eyes where she saw gray hair and eyes a little hard and unsmiling. She gave her hand to him while her eyes appraised him.

"They tell me that you are a winner," she said easily and pleasantly. "Your bridges are the best bridges in Africa. It is something to be proud of—good bridges."

"You didn't always think so highly of bridges," he retorted with a smile.

"I tried to get the right perspective and succeeded."

"I admit that you saw clearly as to your own future," he answered. "They have told me of your fine work and great discovery. I was wrong when I tried to put the bit in Pegasus' mouth."

"You can kill but not hold a winged creature," she answered.

When they finally parted, Julia knew that she was free. He was not the man of her dreams after all. When they arose to toast the master builder, she glanced across to see the man beside whom she had stood during serious operations and experiments. Her eyes approved him.

"Dr. Mack, will you take me home in your car?" she asked when the feast was over.

As they rode through the great city, bright with thousands of lights, the noise of cars, the merry crowds and the places of amusements, Julia thought of far-off Africa and the lonely places where John West had toiled.

"West is a big man," Dr. Mack remarked as if in answer to her thoughts, "because he stuck to his work in that lonely, uncivilized world."

"He asked me to share it when he first went out," she told him.

"Why did you refuse?" he asked.

"Because my work was here and its call was greater than love."

"And now that the bridges are built—?"

Julia slipped her hand into his.

"I'll go to Africa with you next month—we'll work together and find it safer for those wonderful bridges."

His eyes met hers with understanding.

"Was it very hard for you, Julia—to choose between love and work?"

"Yes."

"But you made the right choice. You have no right to bury a talent."

"I knew that love would not last if I had to sit idle and degenerate. Then I do not believe that a woman must be sacrificed to help a man on the road to greatness."

"Love is the greatest force in life because it produces life," Dr. Mack said thoughtfully.

"But in the new world of Tomorrow, work and love will go hand in hand. They will keep a balance."

"I love you both as a woman and as a worker," he told her. "I can't lose you nor bury you because you will always stand beside me."

"In the wilds of Africa or the civilization of New York," she said softly. "We have found the balance."

You cannot be attractive without a clear skin

EVERYBODY wants to be attractive. It is a great and just ambition. But no one can be attractive without a clear skin—you know that.

Do you realize the importance of pure, rich blood in preserving the health, and that the source of most skin disorders is in the blood?

Remove the cause, which is not in the skin itself, and pimples, boils, eczema and that sallow complexion will disappear.

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S?

S.S.S. is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs, and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

—purely vegetable

When your system is filled with rich, red blood, you don't have that tired, languid feeling when you awake in the morning. Instead, you feel refreshed, ready to meet the world.

Your appetite is keen—you enjoy work or play—your skin is clear, cheeks naturally rosy.

All this because rich, red blood builds and sustains the body.

All drug stores sell S.S.S. Get the larger size. It is more economical.

"S.S.S. cleared my skin of pimples and blackheads. I think it a most wonderful blood medicine. Several of my friends are taking it for the same reason I did." Miss Margaret Frye, Lapel, Ind.

PATIENTS PAY COST OF SERUMS ONLY. NO DOCTOR CHARGES.

We are successfully treating Rheumatism, Asthma, Anemia, Neuritis, Nervous and Stomach Disorders, Kidney Trouble, High Blood Pressure, and other ailments affecting the blood stream.

Many people are coming to this institution to learn the real cause of their sickness. In most cases an investigation of the blood stream reveals the cause. Pure blood is the first requisite to perfect health.

We all know that blood is life itself, containing the elements, inorganic and mineral, necessary to sustain life. When it is pure and free from disease germs the sufferer is more than half cured.

The disease germs themselves are harmless, but the toxins formed by them are poisoning, causing much pain and suffering.

If an infection sets in, what suffers? THE BLOOD. In fever, where is the temperature the highest? IN THE BLOOD. When the organs do not function properly, what controls them? THE BLOOD. Where are the disease destroyers? IN THE BLOOD.

If, through overwork, neglect, exposure, the lack of good food, exercise, or oxygen, etc., the cells are not functioning properly, the resistance and vitality is lowered, causing many kinds of aches, pains or disease.

Why drug the stomach when your Blood Cells control High Blood Pressure and most all Chronic Disease?

Watch Your Blood Pressure

The Pittsburgh Research Laboratory specializes in blood troubles, making a correct diagnosis of each case, and treating the patient with the proper serum. Sometimes to multiply the red or white cells, sometimes to reduce them, but in every case upbuilding their strength and efficiency by inciting them to do their intended work that nature meant them to perform.

"Miss Pittsburgh '26" Divorced

THELMA WINS SUIT AGAINST HUSBAND

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 26.—Thelma Williams Gray, of Trafford, actress, school teacher and "Miss Pittsburgh" in the Atlantic City beauty pageant of 1926 today was awarded a decree in divorce from Jess Gray by Judge C. D. Copeland in Common Pleas Court.

The decree ends a fight of several months in which Miss Williams, now reported to be filling a theatrical engagement in Boston, charged her husband with indignities and cruelties. The alleged treatment, Miss Williams charged, started soon after their marriage on September 21, 1926, after the Atlantic City beauty pageant. She left her husband in May, 1927, she said. Miss Williams' home is originally at Port Matilda, Pa.

"RIDERS" TERROR GRIPS TOWN

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Sept. 26.—(AP.)—A reign of terror by a band of citizens calling themselves "Night Riders" has held sway in Barton, a village of less than 1,000 population, near here, for several months, County Prosecutor Paul V. Waddell has been informed, following the indictment and arrest, yesterday, of John Eberhardt, coal mine foreman, on a charge of riotous conspiracy.

Eberhardt is alleged to have been the leader of a "night rider" gang, which is alleged to have attempted to lynch Mrs. Goldie Wheeler, 21, and Lester Berry, 18, several nights ago, after accusing them of improper conduct. The two told the Belmont county grand jury that they were hanged to a tree by the necks with only their toes touching the ground.

Heretofore held in silence by threat of death from the raiders if any of their activities were revealed, several Barton citizens voluntarily appeared before Prosecutor Waddell last night after Eberhardt's arrest and related how the band had dominated the little village for months. These witnesses charged that women had been lured away from home by masked robed bands and beaten because of some fancied wrong they had committed.

Young boys and girls, particularly, were said to have been the victims of the gang.

As a result of the additional information given him last night by the voluntary witnesses, Prosecutor Waddell said he expects to obtain the arrest of at least half a dozen other persons.

Eberhardt was released under $1,500 bond today in Common Pleas Court, pending arraignment.

MILK PRICES BOOSTED CENT, EFFECTIVE OCT. 1

Milk was boosted in price one cent today, effective October 1, at the monthly conference of producers and dealers. The increase raised the rate to 15 cents a quart. The pint went up a half-cent to eight and a half cents on the monthly bill or one cent on a single purchase. Cream also moved up one cent to 18 cents a half pint.

While the dealers and producers were satisfied who would produce the extra cent per quart, it was a moot question where the increase would go, whether the dealers would retain it or pass it on to the producers. The raise was ordered on account of weather conditions and the fact that producers must feed cattle in their stalls instead of turning them out to pasture.

PLAINTIFF MISSING, 16-YEAR CASE ENDS

After being on the court records for 16 years, the case of Mary Jack who sued the Vesta Machine Company in 1912, for the death of her husband, William Jack, was ordered non-suited by Judge George V. Moore, of Common Pleas Court. Jack was killed in the company's plant and for the last six or eight years an effort has been made to find Mrs. Jack. R. H. Jackson, former district attorney of Allegheny county was counsel for Mrs. Jack at the time of the filing of the suit.

Lightning Stuns Man

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Sept. 26.—Lightning struck two houses at Tower Hill No. 1 late yesterday and caused serious injury to Lawrence Anderson, 28, a miner employed by the Hillman Coal and Coke Company.

He was stunned and suffered burns on his body when the bolt tore the roof from his home. He is in the Brownsville General Hospital. His wife escaped injury. Another house nearby was damaged.

LOEB HOPE OF PARDON FADES

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—The faint flickering light which pierced the grim walls of Joliet Penitentiary bringing hope to Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb they might be free within six years, flickered again today and then became extinguished.

Following the statement of Hinton G. Claybaugh, director of pardons and parols, that because of an "error" in the mittimus sending the two college youths to prison for the brutal slaying of little Bobby Franks four years ago, the murderers might be eligible for parole after serving 11 years, there arose today a storm of protest which swept Chicago.

The parole director based his declaration upon the fact that the "error" was committed in the mittimus not stating the sentences of the youths were to be consecutive and not concurrent.

Clarence Darrow, veteran criminal attorney, whose pleas saved them from a hanging sentence, said:

"This mittimus error has no bearing upon the situation. Their release from prison would be a vast miscarriage of justice."

Chief Justice John L. Sullivan of the Criminal Court stated it would be "absurd" to release the "thrill slayers."

Guns Halt Fugitive In Chase

Scores of persons witnessed Motorcycle Patrolmen Louis Keebler and Francis Flannery, with drawn revolvers, capture Eugene Monahan, 24, of 6527 Meadow street, an alleged automobile thief, after a chase of three squares from Seventh avenue and Grant street, last night.

Monahan is alleged to have leaped from a stolen machine after it had been damaged when it struck another car.

Monahan, police say, stole the car of J. W. Scheen, of 400 Fern avenue, from Seventh and Bedford avenues and drove it to Grant street, where he crashed into the parked automobile of F. D. Woods, of 398 Center avenue, Wilkinsburg.

FAILS TO POISON SELF, LEAPS FROM WINDOW

MORE MONEY NEEDED TO AID STORM SUFFERERS

More money and more gifts of women's and children's clothing are needed to relieve the situation of the hurricane sufferers in Florida and Porto Rico, according to appeals sent out yesterday by the American Red Cross.

The total of contributions to the relief fund of the Pittsburgh chapter of the Red Cross has reached $54,419.98. It is pointed out that this still is below Pittsburgh's original quota. To assist donors of clothing, it was announced that trucks would call at homes in the city and suburbs to collect packages of women's and children's apparel intended for the hurricane refugees. The trucks will call upon notifying the headquarters of the Pittsburgh chapter of the Red Cross.

Chairman A. K. Oliver has sent out the following appeal to the residents of Allegheny county:

"Red Cross workers in the field now estimate that a minimum of $5,000,000 will be required to fight disease, relieve starvation and rehabilitate those who have lost all they possess in this terrible catastrophe. As a more complete survey of the stricken districts became possible, an appalling and heartrending situation was discovered. Hundreds of dead were found, with the consequent danger of epidemic and disease, and thousands of men, women and children are homeless, many of them literally on the verge of starvation."

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

IN a Homestead restaurant guests receive this awful warning on the menu: "The rise or fall of market prices may affect this menu at any time." Guests, reading this, might ask the waiter:

"What does your ticker say about ham and eggs?" The waiter probably gives the opening, close, previous high and the current bid.

Speaking of restaurants, a recent experience here in ordering a minute steak prompts the question: "Why are they called minute steaks?" A prize will be awarded any chef in town who can make a minute steak live up to its name. The last one we ordered required 20 minutes to have delivered.

AMONG the most bored persons in the world are the restaurant cashiers, feminine. And also the most wary. They seem to be disillusioned completely about men. It is our idea that the wedding of a restaurant cashier should get nothing worse than a one-column box on page one. If there is a class that seems to be more fed up with what they likely call the species of the opposite sex we have never observed it.

The majority of them are as cheerful as icebergs. We seldom pay a restaurant check to the cashier without feeling that the cashier is about to say: "If you propose making a date with me or calling me 'little girl' I'll shoot you with this automatic I have hidden here."

To foster a better spirit among men who don't want to make dates with cashiers and the cashiers themselves it might be well to organize a new association, with each male member getting a button which he will display in every restaurant he goes into. The button will say: "The wearer of this button has taken a vow never to say: 'Kiddo' or 'Cutie' to any restaurant cashier in the country and he cares for no dates."

Many a time our coffee has grown cold while passing through the frigid zone of the cashier's desk. The cashiers, of course, likely can file a long complaint. It is a fact, however, that they seem to view most customers as the country girls are warned to view the loudly-dressed traveling salesmen who loat at the wicked cigar counters in the biggest hotel on the main stem.

To show that our mood is not altogether unpleasant today let us consider another class of women-workers who are at the other end of the pole in the sphere of congeniality. This class is a small one—the women elevator operators in some of the downtown buildings. Their work is not the pleasantest in the world, yet they have a great cheerfulness about them, promoted, we believe, partly through kindly handing of them by their employers.

SOLDIERS' MEMORIAL HALL is being repainted. This is the first time the interior has been repainted in 20 years, which some experts say is a record. When the walls were first painted the cost clerk at the hall working with D. L. Wright, a county official, was a boy named Lou Wentzel. The cost clerk made all the way to $80 or $90 a month. The same Wentzel is now a multi-millionaire and one of the best-known oil figures in the Southwest. He probably is the most noted local boy who made good, if you leave out such giants as Carnegie, Frick and Schwab.

The best season for the traffic cops is approaching. They like winter better than any other season. The cold bothers them, of course, but traffic is not so heavy, and the gas fumes, of which they get many an inhale, do not worry them as much on cold, raw windy days as on dead, sultry days of the summer.

THREW HER MEALS AWAY, COOKED OWN, WIFE SAYS

"He said the meals weren't fit to eat, threw them across the room and cooked his own," testified Mrs. Esther M. Cunningham, 33, of 5140 Penn avenue, in divorce proceedings yesterday against Daniel J. Cunningham.

"Do you think you're a pretty good cook?" asked Judge George V. Moore.

"I certainly do," replied the witness.

Mrs. Cunningham, chief clerk for the East Liberty district draft board during the World War, testified they were married in 1917 and separated last year. She alleged numerous acts of cruelty as the basis of the suit.

POLICE DEMAND COURT FEES

The Fraternal Order of Police will take up the battle for court fees for policemen witnesses.

Judge George V. Moore today allowed Michael T. Corcoran, president, and other officers of Fort Pitt Lodge No. 1 of the association, to intervene in the suit of Harry Foster against former Controller C. C. McGovern, who shut down on paying policemen who had appeared as witnesses in court cases.

Attached to the petition were a number of fee slips, certified by the district attorney, which McGovern had refused to honor.

CHILD HIT BY AUTO EN ROUTE TO SCHOOL

En route to school, Jean Maliscewska, 7, of 614 West General Robinson street, was run down by an automobile in front of Allegheny General Hospital, Stockton avenue, this morning. The child was bruised about the legs and was carried into the hospital where her injuries, which consisted of brush burns, were dressed.

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.

Al spoke in Montana on oil corruption. That subject can get more applause and less votes from an audience than any subject ever invented during our time.

Jim Reed has made the subject so entertaining that the audience, instead of going out and voting against it, they start practicing it.

Senator Walsh adopted it as a motto and eliminated himself from the race.

It was an issue in 1924 and Calvin won by nine million.

Corruption and golf is two things we can just as well make up our minds to take up, for they are both going to be with us.

Yours, WILL.

Mrs. Evart Threatens to Expose Ann's Marriage Plot With Benny

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

On his first day in Manor Park, where he is to apply the business methods learned in college, Benjamin Carrington Black has occasion to observe three of the suburban town's most alluring examples of feminity. Unnoticed by men, he sees Dianna Rand—nineteen and pretty, enter a jewelry store with her friend, Beatrice Sheldon, whose trailing dress is reminiscent of the Gay Nineties. In the store Diana and Bea encounter Ann Evarts, a trim, petite person. Ann in Diana's roadster sees Noddy and Toddy and Norman Gregory and leaves Diana and Beatrice to join them. Bea and her brother, Freddie, prepare for the party at the Yacht Club. Benny also attends the party where Diana and her friends meet him. It is a gay affair, with Diana being the life of it. Benny is fascinated by the quiet Ann, who makes believe that she does not like "wild" parties. Diana, after the party, tells her mother all about Benny. She meets him several times and falls in love with him. Mrs. Evarts is anxious that her daughter, Ann, fall in love with Benny. However, he is afraid he is falling in love with Diana. Ann tells Norman that Beatrice has a past. At North Lake where the crowd are for a week, Norman questions Bea about her past and she confesses. Later they get married. Diana dreams of the future when Benny professes his love for her. The crowd goes to a party, while Benny and Ann are left in camp, after Ann feigns illness. When the crowd returns Benny wonders how to explain being alone with Ann. Diana is heartbroken when she receives an invitation to Ann and Benny's wedding. Benny and Ann get married and leave for a long honeymoon abroad. Benny quarrels with Ann when her reckless spending of money for clothes amazes him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

DISTRESSED and uneasy, Diana swung the car around the truck and prepared to take the turn which would bring them to the apartment hotel. But Hanna stopped her, motioning for her to go straight ahead.

"I'm not living there any more. They put me out with nothing but one little bag. That's why"—she glanced down at the shabby suit—"I have to wear this old rag on such a day. You see," she continued, settling into the confidence, "I spent almost my last cent on that—that ingrate, and of course I expected—well—"

Diana knew what she had expected. Money — quantities of money. Money to pay the hotel; money for new clothes. She had thought to live on Benny Black the rest of her life. But surely Ann would not be quite so heartless, quite so lacking in pride as to make it possible for a thing like this to happen!

She asked, wonderingly: "But perhaps Ann doesn't understand? I'm sure, if she knew—"

"She knows all right! I've written a dozen times, and yesterday I cabled—collect, of course! I had only a few dollars to my name. And you know what? The cable was refused! Had to pay for it, I did, and today I've been looking for a job. Was a woman up the road advertised for a companion, and I walked—walked, mind you—all the way. But the place was filled."

Hanna began to cry, blowing her nose, scrubbing at her eyes with the dirty handkerchief. "I'll fix that girl! Wait till they get back! I'll go to Ben Black and tell him the truth—let him know the sort he's married to. Then we'll see whether she can flout her mother. Living in a lousy boarding house—why, my rent's up tonight and I haven't the price of another meal. Oh, good Lord—"

Diana was deeply sorry for this coarse, repellant person, however vulgar and ambitious she might be. But she was more sorry for Benny Black, stung with shame by thought of the disgrace which threatened him through Hanna's determination to revenge herself upon Ann. And it was this which prompted her to follow Hanna into the boarding house—which deserved contempt—and make an offer of money.

"Why, that's mighty sweet of you, dearie. Considering everything"— Nothing of mortification in Hanna's demeanor for what they both knew, only astonishment that Diana should do this. "I'll let Ben Black hear how nice you've been, be sure of that!"

"But that's exactly what you must not do, Mrs. Evart. I would not have him know for worlds! Don't you see? I'm sure there's been a mistake—Ann couldn't have got your cable. And when she comes, everything's bound to be all right. You won't mention this—will you? Please promise this: it's for everybody's good—yours, too, you see."

Hanna did see. Making trouble for Ann would not further her own interests; instead it would cut her off. And she had faith in her ability to handle the situation, once contact was established with her daughter.

So she promised readily enough and accepted what she called a "loan" with fulsome expressions of gratitude. "It's a god-send, believe me, dearie. And I'll see you get it back. This will keep me going until—well. I'd ask you to stay to dinner, only this ain't no kind of a place to entertain in."

Diana murmured that she had an engagement and took a hasty departure. And the sordidness of the whole affair weighted her spirit; she kept telling herself there were worse things—oh, much worse things—than losing love. Losing self-respect would be one of these; to feel she no longer could like herself. . .

It was the end of that week she heard Ann and Benny Black had come home.

CHAPTER XXI.

TOWARD the upper end of Manor Park, but removed from the cote d'or by that intangible something which marks the difference between aristocracy and mere wealth, is a resplendent apartment hotel, rearing a yellow sandstone bulk above surrounding trees, dwarfing the few fine old residences which sprawl on rolling lawns nearby.

It is a pile of ostentatious marble corridors, uniformed doormen, discreetly silent elevators. And a single apartment to a floor. Tenants rent these already furnished. Turned out by a high-priced decorator, they run largely to walnut and black velvet, elaborately shaded lamps and inviting easy chairs, whose invitation is not often heeded by the temporary owners.

For it is not a stay-at-home set which lives in the Manor Arms; not one given to reading under the lamps of an evening, inviting its friends to share the luxury of black velvet cushions of a Sunday.

A "fast" crowd, as the neighbors say, listening to the clink of cracked ice, the blare of jazz, the tinkle of laughter.

Not a homey place, the Manor Arms, with its atmosphere of impermanence, its women spending their days in peignoirs while its men go about pursuits in the vagueness of a locality called "The Street."

Yet it was to the Manor Arms that Benny Black brought his bride upon their return from the honeymoon, giving up lingeringly a dream of a stucco house on the hill near the Gregory's.

"Poky little holes," Ann complained, wrinkling her nose. "I'd simply die there."

"But an apartment isn't a real home, dear. And a yard would be nice if—after a while, maybe," he finished, kissing her tenderly.

She shrugged out of his arms, the stubborn look he was beginning to dread crossing the flower face. If he thought she was going to tie herself down with babies now, when all she ever had wanted was within her reach! She was getting good and tired of being treated like a piece of Dresden china. "If," she thought, "I don't get out of this pretty soon, blow off a little steam, I'm going to explode! I'd like to throw something—and at him, too! He thinks I'm all chalk and water, the poor idiot!"

But even as she thought this she looked so wistful, so delicately meek, that he feared he had hurt her again, and quickly agreed to live anywhere she might choose.

Accordingly they came to the Manor Arms, and when he wished to remain at home on the first day of their return she begged him very sweetly not to consider her at all.

"Of course his little girl's going to be miserable without her Benny boy. But she's not selfish. Go right along darling, and she'll be waiting when he comes home."

He kissed her again and again while she writhed with impatience, finally pushing him on his way with as convincing a reluctance as she could manage, crying that he would be late.

Her Play-Toys

By Carlos Sanchez

© 1928 by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc. Great Britain rights reserved.

HER doll days are over and now she is engaged in the fascinating pastime of finding new play toys. Only now she uses human beings for toys. Heartless little flirt! She lines them all up and first amuses herself with one and then with another until she runs the gamut of all of them. And then throws them heartlessly aside as she tires of them. Just as she did when she tired of her very best beloved doll when she was a wee little girl.

But tucked away in a corner of an old trunk in the attic is one homely old doll that no one in the world ever would look at—yet she's keeping it because it was the very bestest beloved of all. All the beauties from France and China and Italy and Germany were thrown aside for this old rag doll which she hugged constantly to her heart. And now she has put it safely away and numbers it among her most treasured possessions.

And that's what is going to happen someday to one of her human play toys. She's going to select the one whom everyone thinks is the last one she would ever look at. And take him to her heart and then he'll be her most treasured Love. I almost said possession, but that wouldn't be exactly fair, would it? So let her enjoy herself for some day she'll tire of all but one—and then—well, orange blossoms and wedding things and all the dear dreams of a girl's heart will come true.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Gets a Strong Hint of Veritzen's Love for Her

AT my comment that I thought he was still very much in love with the Queen of Transvania, my employer sprang to his feet, his face darkened by a frown out of all proportion to the jesting remark I had made. I recalled the stories I had read of the arrogance which characterized the royal house of Rapsburg, whose blood flowed in his veins, and made the mental comment that he had his full share of the trait.

Evidently his request of me to hear the story of his youth, including his romantic attachment to the Princess Olga, now Queen of Transvania, did not permit the lese majesty of even so harmless a jest as I had offered him. But I did not regret my levity. Better to have him trivially angry, for I saw that he was not seriously concerned, than to face the deeper wrath which I was afraid would have been directed toward me if I had truthfully answered his question as to what I thought of his plan to have his son Noel marry the fugitive Princess Olina.

Not that I expected to remain silent upon that point. I meant to protest, and that vigorously, as well as to do everything in my power to thwart his plan, for I felt it could bring only misery to four people. Mary Harrison, Princess Olina, Noel Veritzen and Prince Georges. But I meant to justify the appellation of Machiavellian which he himself had given me, in my dealing with that delicate problem, and as a first step I looked up with carefully simulated contrition at his frowning face.

"Please forgive me," I said before he could speak. "I should not have phrased that thought as a jest. It really is too sacred a matter to be treated lightly. I am sorry."

His frown vanished and he looked down at me with eyes that twinkled in embarrassing comprehension of my thoughts.

"No, you are not sorry at all," he said, "if you will excuse so unpardonable a contradiction of your assertion. You simply are trying to get out of replying to the question I asked you. But I do not need your answer to know that you disapprove of my plan. Your sympathies, unfortunately, are enlisted in the extremely youthful, ephemeral, and undesirable affair between my young cub and Mary Harrison."

It was my turn to frown. Was it possible that in his ridiculous longings to appease the thwarted vanity of his youth he considered Mary's clean American ancestry to be inferior to that of his son with its background of illegal union?

He put up a protesting and understanding hand as he saw the distaste in my face.

"You mustn't misunderstand me," he said. "It is no disapproval of Mary which prompts my actions. And I am fully conscious of the superiority of her unsullied ancestry to that of my poor boy. But Noel is my son, and I am sure some day will share my bitterness at the deal which Fate has given him. If I can give him back part of his heritage by a marriage with the Princess of Transvania, I must do it."

Was the man blind that he could not see of what different fiber Noel was made? He had told me, but a few minutes before of the "gentle, loving girl," Noel's mother, who had brought "comfort, dignity and beauty" into his life. There was the boy's heritage, not the arrogance and silly, childish ambitions which were perverting Philip Veritzen's usually clear judgment.

He did not give me a chance to reply even if I had wished to do so, and I guessed that for the present he was willing to waive the opinion of his course for which he had asked. Still standing he put a quick, terse question.

"Have you any remotest idea of the nature of the danger menacing the Princess?"

"Nothing definite enough to put into words," I evaded, "but I am hoping that she herself soon will tell me what is alarming her."

"Then there is nothing I can do but see that she is safeguarded every hour of the day."

"That, of itself, is rather a tremendous undertaking," I smiled.

"It is one that will be fulfilled," he declared didactically. "And now," softening his tone, and holding out his hand in farewell, "I must go and deploy my defenders—I trust I have the right jargon. Au revoir until tomorrow when I will report anything unusual in our night's watch. Please do not score my plan too hastily and—disabuse your mind of the notion that I am still in love with the Queen of Transvania, or indeed, with any other woman, except—but this not the time—"

He was out of the room before I could rise from my chair, leaving me wondering in agitated displeasure what he had meant by the abrupt queer ending of his little speech.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, September 27

AN eventful and fateful day is the prognostication based upon the important lunar and mutual aspects. Those sudden and fairly whirlwind visitations born of the strong Uranian parallel to Sol and sextile to Luna may be quite unorthodox, unusual and far reaching in effect. While there is presage of benefits and excellent opportunities, yet there is a sign of stubborn obstacle or delays also to be encountered. There may be contracts with corporations or secret agreements. In personal affairs circumspection is counseled.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of unusual activity with possibly radical changes of abrupt appearance. There are likely to be good opportunities, especially with corporations or secret societies, but also there may be delays and stubborn obstacles to be confronted. Personal discretion is enjoined.

A child born on this day may have a spectacular career, with many talents and capabilities for success, despite obstacles. It may be original and independent.

This day we fashion destiny, our web of fate we spin.—WHITTIER.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

U.S. Senator from New York

Seek Expert Advice Before Tooth Extraction

A FAMOUS political leader just died as a result of general blood poisoning due to two infected teeth. He was a brave and kindly man, but his goodness of heart and physical courage could not save him. The infection reached the blood and took his life.

DR. COPELAND

There is great difference of opinion among doctors and dentists as to what should be done with a suspicious tooth. Does the mere fact that it is abscessed, or the suspicion that it may be, justify its immediate removal?

There is no use attempting to deny the dangers of such teeth. The question is, how shall we deal with them?

We must admit at once that many good teeth have been needlessly sacrificed. Then, too, many a diseased tooth has been removed without getting rid of the center of pus infection.

It is not enough merely to have an X-ray picture taken and then yank out the tooth if there is any doubt about its condition. Many a disappointment and useless mutilation have followed such an experience.

The lesson I have in mind today is a plea for conservation. Pulling out the teeth won't cure incurable disease and in many instances keeping the teeth would be better than extracting them. In any event, expert advice must be depended on to decide the fate of the tooth. I beg of you not to jump at conclusions.

There is no question that the cause of many diseased hearts can be traced to pus-infected teeth or tonsils. It is pus from deep-seated centers that is most likely to cause serious involvement of remote organs.

In every breakdown of health, where the cause is not clearly indicated, we have not done our duty until careful search has been made for such a center of pus formation. The teeth are the most likely seat of the infection, the tonsils coming next.

One of the dangers we of the medical profession have had to fight is the temptation to follow off after one fad or another. These fads bring us under the ridicule of the laity at times. But of course we have our turn to laugh because we know a man will attempt suicide one day and call a doctor the next day if he has the stomach ache!

But we face the fact that abscessed teeth and tonsils have caused lots of serious illness. This fact can be explained to the victim of ill health and, after careful study of the case, patient and doctor will agree on a course. But too much must not be expected in an obscure case.

Sayings of Mrs. Solomon

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE OFFICE ANGEL

WHOSO findeth a Perfect Stenographer, findeth a good thing!

The heart of her employer delighteth in her—and she shall have no lack of confidence and praises and RESPONSIBILITIES.

* * *

Behold, she arriveth always while her Boss still enjoyeth his morning beauty sleep, and departeth not until his work hath been "cleaned up," nor needeth the sound of the gong.

HELEN ROWLAND

She useth not the office as a Beauty Parlor; yet her hair is smoother than a selling talk, and her frocks are fresher than a college boy's wit.

She vampeth not in office hours, neither doth she gossip; and whatsoever goeth in at her ears, goeth not out through her tongue. She is more to be trusted with a secret than a safe-deposit vault.

She hearkeneth patiently unto her employer's favorite jokes, and laugheth thereat heartily, unto the third and fourth telling. She receiveth his confidences concerning his domestic sorrows, and sympathizeth discreetly.

* * *

The good "prospect" escapeth her not. She maketh him "at home" and holdeth him with smiles of honey and words of guile, until her employer arriveth.

She regardeth not her job as a short cut to matrimony, nor the office as her Happy Hunting Grounds in the Husband-chase, nor "business" merely as the intermission between the school-desk and the altar-rail.

* * *

She jollyeth the chief clerk and admireth the manager's cravats. She filleth the office with sweetness and light and conquereth the hearts of the office boys. She keepeth the wheels running with sweet oil and applesauce. She goeth more softly than a trained nurse.

* * *

She hath a voice of velvet, the eyes of Argus, and the tact of a divorce lawyer.

She possesseth the coolness of a surgeon and the temper of an angel.

The rapidity of a fireman and the accuracy of an adding machine.

The amiability of a night-club hostess—and the dignity of a school teacher.

The patience of the Peace Monument and the nerves of a clam.

Verily, verily, whoso findeth one of these, may call himself blessed. Yet, when she departeth to be MARRIED, he is filled with self-pity and astonishment.

* * *

But what damsel possessing all the perfections of woman would not choose rather to be a proper man's darling than a rich man's office appliance?

And, whoso WEDDETH a Perfect Stenographer getteth a Good Wife! SELAH.

Living in "High" or "Low" Dangerous; Fay King Finds "Medium" Safe

By FAY KING

LIVING life in "high" is a dangerous thing.

It means that your dreams and ambitions are apt to be far beyond what it is probable for you to accomplish, and you are dooming yourself for bitter disappointments.

Or, if it is speed in your pleasures, you will waste youth and energy and wear yourself out long before your time.

Living life in "low" is just as bad. You will miss much happiness through your pessimistic outlook.

It is best to live life sensibly in "medium." Not undervaluing nor overvaluing things. Not soaring to unattainable heights nor wallowing in despair and regret.

The tidal waves of "high" wreck one. The undertow of "low" draws one. It is best to swim along safely in the "medium."

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Crop of Buds So Far This Year Only Half of Last Season's, But More Debuts May Be Announced Later

JUST about every other year we have a particularly long list of debutantes, have you ever noticed? This year is not one of the "long" ones, but the debut season will be interesting anyway with several entertainments planned for each bud. So far, the "known" debutantes number 15, about half the number, if I remember correctly, there were last season. Mid-October may see several additions. By November the debutante season will be in full swing, and during the holidays there will be innumerable affairs, but a goodly number of these will be for the subdebs and their carefree young brothers home from school.

The first days of November will see more buds "blossoming" into the world of their elders than any other period of the season. And a new date for that month I've just heard of. The Leonard Kent Guilers, of Squirrel Hill avenue will present their daughter, Bettie, to society on Tuesday, November 6. This first entertainment will be, as usual, a tea, to be given in the family home.

Bettie is another of the long list of Pittsburgh girls who have gone to Dobbs Ferry.

DURING October a number of Pittsburgh folks will be in New York for several days and sometimes a week or so. Among these will be Cora Henderson McClay, daughter of the Samuel McClays, of Devon road, whose engagement to Stanley Logan Yonce, of Duluth, son of Mrs. Mary L. Yonce, of Janesville, Wis., was announced early this month. She will spend most of the first two weeks of October in Gotham.

* * *

DOWN at Hot Springs, Va., there is an autumn season that is rivaling the summer resort season. The B. Preston Schoyers, the George Phelps Roses and the W. T. Fricks have all gone down. One great attraction, I daresay, is the Women's National Golf tournament.

* * *

SPEAKING of resorts, I remember I heard the George W. Crawfords have left White Sulphur Springs and have gone to New York before returning home. The Crawfords will return to the Springs next season. I'm quite sure, for they have taken a lease of several years on the Casino cottage, I've learned.

MANY of the young folks have left home now for school. J. Conway Macon, Jr., and Frank M. Tack, of Sewickley, left Friday for their second year at Lawrenceville School, Lawrenceville, N. J. Frederick Harbison will also be at Lawrenceville this year.

Lois V. Tack and Betty Higgins, also of Sewickley, left on Monday for Oldfields School, Baltimore. Georgianna Collin left the same night for Westover School, Middleton, Conn.

THE John S. Laughlins have been in New York, stopping at the Weylin Hotel.

MRS. F. B. SHEAFFER, chairman of the women's entertainment committee of the South Hills Country Club, is in charge of the monthly bridge luncheon to be given tomorrow. A dinner dance is scheduled for October 10 and a masque ball will be held October 31. The first formal winter dinner dance is set for November 10.

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made of the marriage of Miss Mary Margaret Guthrie, daughter of Mrs. Catherine A. Guthrie, of Greenfield avenue, and Dr. W. J. Jackson, son of Mrs. Mary Jackson, of McKee place, which was solemnized yesterday morning in St. Rosalia's Catholic Church. Miss Regina A. Guthrie and Thomas J. Quinlan were the attendants. After a southern motor trip Dr. and Mrs. Jackson will be at home in Beechwood boulevard.

THE marriage of Miss Katherine Reineman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Reineman, of Glenshaw, and James C. Murray, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Murray, of Edgewood, was solemnized last night in the Glenshaw Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Dr. R. F. Young, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Charles J. Whitlatch, pastor of the Mifflin Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Wilkinsburg. The bride wore white satin and duchess lace with a full court train of the satin covered with lace, and her tulle veil was caught with pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a shower of orchids, white roses and lilies of the valley. Her sister, Mrs. Marie R. Hessley, as matron of honor, appeared in gold taffeta and carried gold-tinted dahlias. A small niece, Virginia Reineman, was flower girl, wearing cream lace. The bridesmaids, Mrs. George H. Edel, Miss Audrey Voelp and Miss Mary Reis, wore poppy-red taffeta and carried dahlias. Thomas A. Murray was his brother's best man and the ushers included another brother, William Murray; Walter Reineman, brother of the bride; George Edel, of Brownsville; Crawford Brown, Ernest Reis and Robert Thomas. After a dinner in the Edgewood Country Club, Mr. and Mrs. Murray left for an eastern trip. They will make their home in Glenshaw.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made of the marriage of Miss Sarah Porter Hunter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Armstrong Hunter, of Oakmont, and William Victor Drake, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Drake, of New Rochelle, N. Y., which was solemnized last Saturday. After an extensive trip to New England and Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Drake will be at home in Fairmont, W. Va.

THE marriage of Miss Myrtle Wilma Salomon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Salomon, of the Senate Apartments, St. Louis, formerly of Pittsburgh, and Glenn Pareira will be solemnized Sunday, October 7, at 5:30 o'clock in the Hotel Statler, St. Louis, by the Rev. Dr. Louis Witt. Miss Sallie Salomon will be her sister's maid of honor. Fred Pareira will be his brother's best man. A dinner for the bridal party and immediate families will be followed by a reception from 9 to 12 o'clock.

ROBERT SWAN CHAPTER No. 293, O. E. S., will hold an entertainment tonight in the East End O. E. S. Temple. Miss Bessie Hinebaugh will sing and there will be old-fashioned numbers by Miss Lillian McDonald. The Strollers will give a short sketch under the direction of Miss Mae Sweeney and David Echard will give baritone solos.

Jacques Lindauer, chef of the Ile de France, new 43,000-ton steamship of the French line, is to visit Pittsburgh tomorrow to prepare menus and direct the service at Reymer's Clark Building Tea Room. RADIO SHOW PROMISES TO OUTSHINE ALL OTHERS

Sponsored by the Pittsburgh Radio Trade Association, the third annual Pittsburgh Radio Show, to be held next week at Duquesne Garden, will undoubtedly outshine its predecessors as to the quality and quantity of the exhibits and attractiveness of programs. The exposition opens Monday and continues through Saturday night, with special features of entertainment every afternoon and evening.

Many interesting innovations in apparatus will be on display, including the new automatic tuning device inaugurated by Zenith, Freshman's screen grid receiver and the electrostatic loud speaker, perfected by Newcombe-Hawley. Also, the latest in alternating current receiving sets and new designs in cabinets and loud speakers, will be shown.

Several new companies, which formerly provided only radio parts, have entered the field as bona fide manufacturers of radio apparatus and their products also will be exhibited. The newcomers include the Edison, Graybar and the Eveready companies.

Mrs. J. B. Malone of East End says:
"Clothes don't fray now"

"I wish every woman would try this safe, easy way of washing clothes.

"Why, when I take them out of the washer everything is so spotless that there's not a bit of hard work for me to do.

"And it's so safe! The clothes don't fray nearly so quickly now — there's so little rubbing.

"Rinso is great for dishwashing and all kinds of cleaning. It makes such thick, cleansing suds in our water that the work is done in almost no time. It saves me from keeping my hands in hot water, too."

MRS. JOHN B. MALONE,
6018 Hoerueller St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Softens water—gives lasting suds

Millions of women use Rinso for extra-white clothes. Thousands write us letters like the above. "Even boiling isn't needed now," many write. "This way is so safe!" delighted users tell us. They trust their finest cottons and linens to Rinso's gentle care. This granulated hard-water soap is all you need, even in hardest water—no bar soaps, chips, powders or softeners. The makers of 34 leading washing machines endorse it. Great for tub washing, too—saves scrubbing, saves your hands. Get the big household package and follow easy directions on the box.

'VOTE MUSIC' TONIGHT

THE Democrats are planning to say it with music. Irving Berlin, Willie Collier and Gene Buck, a trio of the theater so well known as to need no introduction, will do their parts toward obtaining the election of Gov. Alfred E. Smith as President, by means of a coast-to-coast broadcast tonight at 10:30 o'clock. This program will be placed on the air here through WCAE. Orchestral music by Fred Barrens' Democrats orchestra also will be included in the program.

Berlin has never before appeared before a microphone in a radio studio, but will contribute his part to the Democratic program in the studios of the National Broadcasting Company in New York. He will sing several of his own songs, including "We'll All Vote for Al in the Fall" and "Roses of Yesterday."

Buck, who first became famous as a composer and lyricist, and who is now one of New York's most successful producers, will give a talk on the theater and its attitude toward Gov. Smith's candidacy.

Willie Collier, a famous actor and comedian, will act as master of ceremonies.

Another of Will Rogers' theatrical friends will go on the air in support of the cowboy humorist's campaign for President when Thomas Meighan, actor, motion picture star and former Pittsburgher, appears as the "orator of the evening" in a radio rally to be broadcast over WJAS at 10 p. m.

This second "Will Rogers for President" rally will be a "Congressional Minstrel Show," showing how the government would be glorified if Rogers were elected. Eddie Cantor and Robert Benchley will be featured on the program.

Music appropriate to the scene and occasions will be furnished by other theatrical associates of the candidate.

A new program of popular selections has been added to the daily program broadcast from Station KDKA each day, presented by Don Bestor and his recording orchestra and transmitted from the William Penn Hotel, the after theater supper-dance. Bestor and his orchestra also will play the dinner music beginning at 6:30 o'clock.

The KDKA Maytag Ramblers are prepared to give one of their popular programs this evening beginning at 10 o'clock, the Maytag orchestra playing "The Spanish Gypsy Dance," followed with a violin solo, "When you're Away." Other selections to be found on the program follow: "Only You," "Clarice," "Musical Snuff Box," "Music Box," "Take Me Back to Blighty" and a reading, "The Fool's Prayer."

The WCAE Gospel Songs, under the direction of Gertrude Mohr, will be presented tonight at 7 o'clock. The quartet consists of Elsie Matz Bauman, soprano; Lois Wiley, contralto; Max Kroen, baritone; Vincent Kroen, tenor.

MONON VALLEY MINES BUSY

MONONGAHELA, PA., Sept. 26—A survey of the mining situation in the Central Monongahela valley region discloses that those mines with river loading facilities are operated at about 85 per cent normal capacity.

Substantial increases in mines of both classifications are expected early in October, due both to seasonal demands and to the unusual large number of steel mills now working at above normal for the autumn period and which are supplied with fuel by mines in this region.

Orders for early delivery booked by the Bethelhem Steel Corporation are expected to keep the large mines of the company at Ellsworth, Cokeburg, Marianna and Hazelkirk working at or near capacity for the remainder of the present year.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Situation in Flag Races Keeps Fans at Feverish Pitch—Only Remote Mathematical Chance for Macks—Sherdel Great Help to Cards—Giant Fighting Spirit Still in Evidence.

ANOTHER day gone by, the finish only four days away, and the situation in the two big baseball pennant races unchanged.

All four of the contenders having won their games yesterday, there was nothing to relieve the impatience of the nation's fans in the picture that continued to greet their eyes today as they kept up their feverish wait for a decision in the hottest and closest flag fights that the major leagues have known since 1908.

Dazzy Vance

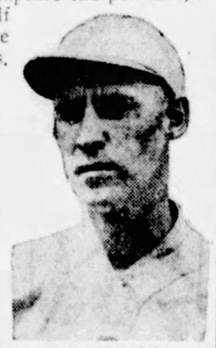
The Cardinals are still leading by the scant margin of one game over the Giants in the National, and the Yankees maintain their greater advantage of two lengths over the Athletics in the American.

IN ONE sense, yesterday's developments may be said to have favored the Redbirds and the Hugmen, as the distance to the finish line has been decreased by one day, and that is something that always spells an advantage to the leaders.

For a trailing team has got to do more than merely hold its own and keep pace with the club in front of it, in order to win out. It has got to gain on the leading outfit, and the shorter the distance that remains to be traveled the less chance it will have to do the trick.

THIS applies particularly to the American League race, in which the two-game lead of the Yankees gives the Athletics only a remote mathematical chance to overtake them.

Ordinarily, a two-game lead would be considered only a slight one, but it looks practically safe in view of the fact that the Yanks have only five more and the Mackmen only four more games to play. If the New Yorkers win only three of their remaining five contests they will capture the pennant, as in that event the A's would finish half a game behind them even if they were to win all four of their remaining events.



Billy Sherdel.

CONDITIONS in the National League are slightly different, for even if the Cardinals manage to retain their one game advantage until Sunday the last day of the season, they will have to meet their New York rivals in the concluding contest and will be required to win that final tussle to keep themselves from being tied for the pennant. So if the Giants are victorious as often in their four game with the Cubs, starting with a double-header tomorrow, as the Cardinals are successful in one game with the Robins and three with the Braves, meanwhile, the McGrawites will have a chance to deadlock the struggle by winning on the final day, making a play-off necessary.

THE Cardinals may be hard pressed to escape having a half game sliced from their lead while the Giants are idle today, as the threatening form of Dazzy Vance confronts them.

One or two easier things than beating Vance at any time might be imagined, and at present he looks particularly dangerous, as he has won 11 of his last 13 games and is out for his twentieth victory of the year.

At that, the Cards have beaten Dazzy three times in four meetings this season, though it may or may not be significant that all three of their wins over him were scored in St. Louis, while today they face him in Brooklyn, where he won his only decision of the year against them.

BILLY SHERDEL is doing a little more than his share to keep the Cardinals in front and will be entitled to a great deal of credit for the success of the club if it wins out.

The left-hander's victory over the Robins in a 15-inning battle yesterday, his twentieth win of the season against 10 defeats by the way, and in which he was not scored against in the last seven innings, was not his only recent contribution to the Cardinal cause.

Billy Southworth

He pitched nine innings against the Giants and defeated them last Thursday, worked four innings in a relief role and lost to them on Saturday, and then hurled almost two full games yesterday. In six days he pitched a total of 28 innings, or more than three regulation contests.

GIANT fighting spirit was in evidence again yesterday. It isn't often that a pitcher of Eppa Rixey's caliber is beaten out after holding a lead of 3 to 0 at the end of the sixth inning and an advantage of 3 to 2 at the end of the eighth, but McGraw's battlers got to him for two tallies in the ninth and turned into victory what had looked like a certain defeat. You've got to hand it to them for their fighting qualities and gameness whether they win or lose the pennant.

THOUGH the St. Louis National League's chain-store system is far from being popular, the pennant victory of Rochester, one of the clubs owned by the Cardinal bosses, on the final day of the sensational International League race was pleasing to fans of the Pittsburgh district for the reason that the winning team was managed by Billy Southworth, former Pirate outfielder.

For more than two seasons Southworth was a regular in the Pittsburgh lineup, and won a host of friends here by his consistently good work. He came to the Bucs on July 2, 1918, from Birmingham, and remained on the local roster until January 23, 1921, when he was traded to the Braves, along with Outfielder Fred Nicholson, Infielder Walter Barbare and $15,000 in cash, for Shortstop Rabbit Maranville.

ROCHESTER had gone through 16 successive seasons without winning a pennant. Singularly enough, that city's last previous flaflg in 1911 was captured by a team managed by another former Pirate in the person of John Ganzel.

Ganzel was given a short tryout at first base by the Pirates early in the season of 1898. He had been obtained

NO SCOUTING PACT MADE

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Sept. 26.—(A.P.)—West Virginia University and the Haskell Institute, whose football teams meet at Wheeling on Oct. 6, have agreed on a non-scouting pact, Director of Athletics H. A. Stansbury of West Virginia announced yesterday.

NUSS HAS FIGHTING ELEVEN

(This is the thirteenth of a series of articles by Jess Carver, dealing with the football prospects of tri-state colleges. Thiel will be reviewed in Friday's Sun-Telegraph, with pictures of the Lutherans accompanying the article.)

By JESS M. CARVER,
Staff Correspondent.

BETHANY, W. Va., Sept. 26.—Bethany College, the school that breeds fighting football teams, is getting ready to spring a surprise on the gridiron folks with its 1928 varsity eleven. Hidden away in the green hills of West Virginia, this little school with its aggressive athletic boss, Furmannn Nuss, is building a cam and a morale that will test to the utmost the powers of every opponent.

The Bison folks are not coddling the hopes of an undefeated or a championship bringing season. They have high hopes but they are hopes of an eleven that will carry forward the traditions of the school, traditions of honor and spirit, sugared with more than the usual Bethany quota of victories.

The Bethany squad as it was shown to me here, proudly so, too, by Nuss, is as hefty an eleven as I've looked at this fall in a tour of football training camps in this tri-state territory. Besides their weight the boys have speed, and they exhibited enough class in the workouts that I witnessed to convince of their potential values.

LETTER MEN

Coach Nuss has eleven letter men around whom he is forming his machine. He is depending on a powerful line, fast charging on the offense and smart on the defense and a hard running set of backs, led by the fine Dale Fiers, captain and fullback. His forward wall, despite its weight, will be a wieldy weapon and promising as a measure of defense.

The Bethany line, as it stacks up at present will average 192 pounds. The backfield quartet that appears to have the greatest chance to see regular service will go better than 165 pounds. There you have a team average of about 180. This is the equal of any college eleven in the district, with the possible exception of Carnegie Tech.

Big Eddie Peene, a 190 pound husky and Mal Rush, both veterans are the outstanding candidates for the terminal posts. Peene looks and acts the part of a high class football player. Rush is none the less fast and clever, though he lacks some of Peene's weight. Bramhall, 180, Damschroder, 180, Browsky and Fisher, lighter men, complete the end squad.

Rogers, a big fellow from Lawrenceville Prep, who goes 195 pounds in his socks; Mariatte, a 205 pounder from Wheeling; Telfair, a 185 pound veteran; Behnke, brother of the West Virginia end and a 190 pounder and A. Behm and A. Rush, both of the latter being over the 180 pound mark gives Russ half a dozen tackles, any one of which would be a welcome addition to any college squad. Rodgers and Mariatte have been getting a lot of work on the first eleven, but Telfair, Behnke and Behm are three linemen who cannot be kept out of the lineup for long.

GUARDS HEFTY

At the guards, Burwell, Latto, the former weighing 195 pounds and the latter beating the 215 mark; Hamil, a veteran who goes about 180, McQuon and Buttermore, both of whom are over 185 are causing the Bison mentors to sleep well of nights when they come to consider defensive strength. Price a letterman, will handle the center job. He is good. Corley, a freshmen, who has five pounds in weight on Price, is a capable understudy, certain of getting into much action.

Capt. Dale Fiers, who preaches on Sunday and smacks the line on Saturday is the big shot of the backfield. He is through after this season here, and is out to make his last year his best. And his record during the past three years has been one worth hanging on the wall. He is the team's best passer, besides being a great defensive back.

Roe and Baker, two clever backfield men, and Lund, the veteran punter complete the first string backfield enrollment. Lund, who has taken on weight this year, is booting 'em better than ever. All three are fine ball carriers.

Imel, who will get all of the reserve quartetbacking and a great deal of regular ball carrying, Kasarda, Dice, Ronsids, McVey and Houston are the remaining backfield men who are sure of first or second string jobs.

12 RULES FOR SUCCESS

by GENE TUNNEY
RETIRED HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION

NO. V.—THE VALUE OF CONFIDENCE.

THERE is only one thing in the world more dangerous than conceit and that is self-depreciation.

Many men burlesque life by presuming an ability which they do not possess and by attaining a position which they cannot maintain. It is a truism that exaggerated conceit is incipient insanity, but that is not what I mean by confidence.

No one but a man with a "swell head" would attempt the unreasonable. An animal roaming wild in the forest has a better instinct for proportion than that. No bantamweight ever would enter the ring to wage a crucial contest with a heavyweight. He knows that there is such a thing as class. But a man having found his class, either mentally or physically, ought to have the stamina and confidence to measure his lance with any adversary. It is not conceit to value your power in moments of calm calculation. It is a sin not to do so.

Your opponent may have had wide experience, a stirring and competent record. The papers may give a long list of his victories. They may state that on past performances he is a sure winner, that he has met good men and laid them in the dust, but remember he has never met you. You are his enigma and problem. No two humans are alike. As Henry Van Dyke says, "there is one place we are all alike—we are all different." That difference in you is your capital and his problem. Whatever others may say regarding your rival, they have not tabulated your powers nor analyzed your skill.

Beyond an intimate knowledge of even your own power, you have an unknown force in reserve that may come to your assistance and help.

It would be a serious thing if a man having a meager knowledge of anatomy should attempt a delicate surgical operation, but to the real surgeon, trained and skilled, there is an approach to the sufferer of an intelligent knowledge which is the basis of confidence.

Primarily every man who believes in himself has a valuable asset to his undertaking, but his faith in himself must be justified by the expert knowledge he brings to bear on his task. The shores of time are strewn with the wreckage of men who had great ability, but who did not believe in themselves. Then they met a crisis, and, to their amazement, powers were revealed that they never dreamed of. Nature plays some funny tricks upon the storehouse of power that is in us, but not until we command its use does it come to our aid and set us going.

Many of us had in our early lives a natural timidity. We hesitated to step into the limelight, but confidence gave us the mastery and success. The eagle takes an eaglet on its strong and tried wings out into the broad sky and then shakes the youngster off. Immediately the eaglet realizes something has to be done, confidence asserts itself and away it flies.

From a boy, my nature has been retiring. I was hesitant of asserting my powers, but, realizing that I possessed strength and skill, confidence came to the rescue and here am I the retired champion of the world.

PENNANT CHASES NEAR END

Associated Press.

AS if by mutual consent, contenders in baseball's two major league pennant battles have settled into a perfect lock-step which, if maintained in unbroken rhythm, automatically will carry the St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Yankees into the world series.

The Cardinals and the New York Giants have matched strides for several days, with McKechnie's men always a jump ahead in their fight for their second National League pennant in three years. In the American League, Miller Huggins' Yankees have been content to win when the Philadelphia Athletics won and to lose when their only rivals saw fit to do likewise.

END NEARING

With the end of the campaign only five days away, the Cards today led the Giants by a single game, while the Yankees enjoy a two-game margin over the Athletics. The Yanks apparently are "in," but the National League fight may be carried right up to the final day—September 30—when the two contenders clash at the Polo Grounds. That battle will bring the lock-step and may decide the new National League champions.

There was no change in the situation yesterday, for the leaders in each league were returned victorious.

The Giants and the Cardinals, however, both had close calls.

The Giants apparently were doomed to defeat at the hands of Eppa Rixey and the Cincinnati Reds, when the last half of the ninth opened. Here Rixey gave Bob O'Farrell, a pinch hitter, the only pass he issued. O'Doul ran for O'Farrell, but was forced at second by Walsh. The latter, however, scored the tying run on Andy Cohen's triple to right field. Joe Stripp fruitlessly protesting that spectators had interfered with his fielding of the ball. In this crisis, Andy Reese came through with a single, scoring Cohen with the run that gave the Giants a 4-to-3 victory.

The Cardinals were given a terrific battle at Brooklyn, but finally edged out a 4-to-3 victory in 15 innings.

The Chicago Cubs all but passed out of the pennant picture when they were beaten by the Phillies, 5 to 2.

CARD FANS EXCITED

ST. Louis, Sept. 26.—If ever a city went completely baseball mad, St. Louis may be said to have become just that.

Each afternoon, for a period of about two hours, it suspends normal activity to enjoy a painful attack of municipal heart-failure.

Only when the last out is recorded and the Cardinals have preserved their slender lead over the Giants does the city return to normalcy.

Taylor Douthit's double with Maranville on second in the fifteenth inning of yesterday's game with Brooklyn averted a threatened civic collapse.

St. Louisans watch their Cards that close, and any office boy who has failed to keep his boss informed up to the minute already has been fired.

The hope of winning out is fed by memories of two years ago when Rogers Hornsby led the Red Birds to the city's first world series in 35 years.

More than 50,000 applications for seats at world series games that may be scheduled here October 7, 8 and 9 are stacked up in the Cardinals' office.

BUC-BRAVE CONTEST OFF

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

BOSTON, Sept. 26.—The final game of the season between the Pittsburgh Pirates and Boston Braves, scheduled here this afternoon, was called off on account of wet grounds and cold weather.

As the Pirates are scheduled to wind up their season's schedule in Brooklyn, today's postponement cannot be played off.

The Pirates were scheduled to leave here for Brooklyn late this afternoon.

The Corsairs defeated the Braves yesterday by a lop-sided score of 13 to 8. Brame started for the Pirates, but gave way to Dawson, although the former was credited with the victory. Greenfield was hammered hard, the Pirates scoring eight runs in the first three innings.

Ralston Hemsley led the Pirates' attack, the young catcher getting four hits in five trips to the plate.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

BY HARRY KECK
SPORTS EDITOR

THIS will be known in years to come as the Headache Era in baseball. You know, everybody got headaches from watching the close pennant races in the two big leagues and two big minor leagues right down to the finish. Either that or the Good Business Era, with the fans flocking to the box offices like nobody's business.

It pays to get your name in the All-America lists. Here we have the two outstanding halfbacks of last season on the rival New York professional elevens this fall. Gibby Welch, of Pitt, is with the Yankees, succeeding Red Grange, who presumably has gone back to the ice business, and Bruce Caldwell, of Yale, will tote leather for the Giants. They will clash in the Yankee Stadium, October 28. A couple of likely young freshmen in the pro ranks.

SPEAKING of rubbing it in, did you ever hear about the time Mannie Seeman, New York lightweight, boxed Benny Valger at Long Branch, N. J., and then gave Benny a rubdown in the dressing room after the bout?

Jack Dempsey walked into Tex Rickard's office in Madison Square Garden the other day to give the assembled newspaper boys a load of hooey about his Broadway show and spiel Jimmy Bronson, Gene Tunney's chief second in the latter's championship battles, and stopped dead and then walked out into another room. Wouldn't stay in the same room with Bronson, whom he accuses of scattering the slacker stuff about him immediately after the war. Bronson spurned offers of friends to intercede and patch up matters. Said he had got along very well without Dempsey's friendship all of these years and why change now?

HARRY AMMON, who has been the star pitcher of Glendale Terrors, of New York, for 28—count 'em—years, was knocked off the mound by the Ridgewood Rivals in the third inning of a game Sunday and went in to catch. In the next inning he was knocked out of the ball game when a foul ball socked him on the head. The final score was 26 to 14, not counting the damage done to the veteran. It was an eventful afternoon.

Jack Delaney's great right cross is a thing of the past. He cannot straighten out the arm any more, as the result of the shrinkage of tendons or cords in the elbow following operations. In technically knocking out Nando Tassi in 11 rounds recently, he turned the trick with left hooks and right uppercuts. It's the beginning of the end for Bright Eyes.

FABLE: One upon a time there was an important baseball game at the Polo Grounds. A pennant hung in the balance. And no phony home runs were hit.

Billy Southworth, erstwhile Pirate, Boston Brave, New York Giant, St. Louis Cardinal and Cleveland Indian, not only managed the Rochester club of the International League to the pennant this season, but also was the runnerup for the batting championship of the circuit, finishing within 10 points of Dale Alexander, of Toronto, with a mark above .370. Alexander hit 30 home runs and also was first in this department.

DOMINICK PROFIO, the Western Pennsylvania amateur boxing champion, who turns professional against Jackie Murray in the semi-final at McKeesport tonight, is 19 years old and weighs only 138 pounds, although he leads the 147-pound division. He is a great puncher and has compiled an impressive knockout record. His home is in Cecil, Pa., where his father conducts a theater.

The University of Nebraska Cornhusker football squad, which will be met by Pitt in a return game at Lincoln, Neb., this fall, numbers 75 candidates, and the eleven again will be one of the biggest and heaviest in the land. The line from tackle to tackle will average more than 200 pounds, and the ends about 185 pounds. The backs will average 190 pounds, with Reb Russell, sophomore quarterback, tipping the beam at 205. Glenn Munn, 210-pound brother of Monte and Wayne Munn, who were famous boxers and wrestlers after leaving Nebraska, likely will fill the tackle position held down last year by Ray Randels. He was a sub at the position last fall, and played against Pitt in the Stadium.

LOCAL TENNIS PRO LOSES IN TOURNEY

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 26.—(AP.)—Karel Koseluh, of Czecho-Slovakia, recent victor over Vincent Richards in their series of matches for the world's professional lawn tennis championship, scored an easy victory over John Collom, of Baltimore, in the first round of the American professional championship here. The scores were 6-1, 6-0, 6-0. The European star, playing his characteristic faultless defensive game, had little trouble offsetting the forcing tactics of the American. Louis Volpe, of Boston, and Julius Heise, of Pittsburgh, staged the first extra set match, Volpe winning by scores of 6-3, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3. Two other international matches resulted in favor of the American players.

Charles Wood, of New York, defeated William G. Standing, of England, 6-4, 6-2, 6-0, and Paul Heston, of Forest Hills, defeated Otto Gloeckler, of Germany, 6-1, 6-1, 6-4. Heston and Wood were on the seeded list.

Two Cousins Are Opposed

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Sept. 26.—(AP.)—An overnight frost had disappeared, but there was still a distinct chill in the air as 16 women golfers started out today to play eight matches to reduce the contestants to eight.

Miss Maureen Orcutt, Englewood, N. J., and Mrs. Harley G. Higbie, Detroit, headed the first bracket, with Mrs. G. H. Lifur, California champion, and Miss Virginia Wilson, Chicago, Canadian titleholder, closed the lower half.

A bright sun smiled on the first pairs out, but there was little warmth in it and the players continued to wear two layers of sweaters.

Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, Philadelphia, three times champion, and Mrs. Harry Pressler, Los Angeles, twice Western champion, took up today where they left off last year. These two sterling players met in the first round of the 1927 championship at Cherry Valley, Mrs. Pressler winning, one up.

COUSINS OPPOSED

Miss Helen Paget, the Canadian girl who defeated the champion, Mrs. George W. Tyson, yesterday, cautioned her caddy against carelessnes before starting her round with another former champion, Mrs. C. H. Stetson, Philadelphia. The match between Miss Marion Hollins, 1921 champion, and Miss Rosalie Knapp, another New York player, was a family affair. They are cousins.

Mrs. Higbie was holding Miss Orcutt all square at the fourth hole, although she was not matching the long drives of the Englewood star. The first was halved in par, the second in birdie 4's and Miss Orcutt went one up with a par at the third, only to lose the advantage at the short fourth.

Mrs. Hurd, who has held almost every major woman's championship, had gained two holes on Mrs. Pressler at the third hole and held the advantage by halving the fourth in four, one over par.

BOB GRAHAM BEATEN

By TOM BIRKS.

The defeat of Robert Graham, the medalist, by J. Pasnik, a boy of 17, and the disqualification of Pasnik which followed, featured the first round of match play in the annual city golf championship tournament at the Schenley public links today.

Pasnik conquered Graham by the slender margin of 1 up, but John Jay Burke and Al McBride, tourney directors, ruled that Pasnik was not eligible to competition in the city tourney because of having competed in the district caddies' tourney staged about three weeks ago at the Pittsburgh Field Club.

Carl Kauffmann, national public links champ, had a close call in the first round, beating A. Sweetser on the home green, 1 up. The summary:

CHAMPIONSHIP FLIGHT.

R. G. Barr defeated Mike Galido, 1 up, 19 holes.
Tex Wessel defeated James Ryan, 3 and 2.
Ed Wallerstadt defeated Frank Petrillo, 4 and 5.
J. F. Lally defeated Mike Lipchick, 1 up.
J. S. Wyman defeated S. W. Phillips, 1 up.
Bernie McFarland defeated M. H. Bochert, 2 and 1.
Carl Kauffmann defeated A. Sweetser, 1 up.
J. Pasnik defeated Robert Graham, 1 up, but Pasnik was disqualified for having competed in the district caddie tourney.

SECOND FLIGHT.

J. Gordon defeated D. F. Woods, 2 up; W. Laske defeated W. Pickels, 1 up; Pat McDonough defeated Dr. Brandom, by default; F. Schwartz defeated Dick Brown, 3 and 2; J. W. Pratt defeated J. Dunlap, 6 and 5; H. Perris defeated J. A. Botsford, 2 and 1; Tom Barr defeated A. Hugh, by default; George Lumsden defeated H. Halyake, 2 up.

THIRD FLIGHT.

M. Harris defeated J. O'Rourke, 2 up; H. Stevenson defeated Dr. Lloyd, 1 up; C. McDonald defeated Dr. Canter, 2 up; W. H. Hubner defeated O. Sigal, 5 and 4; M. Wahimoth defeated H. R. Evans, 1 up; Roy Carson defeated R. S. Rowley, by default; C. S. Kesover defeated Dr. Blair, 1 up; Kirk Joyce defeated Dr. Rupp, 1 up.

Monongahela Gets Jackets and Grovers Game

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Sept. 26.—The Waynesburg and Grove City College football game, originally scheduled to have been played in Uniontown on November 10, has been transferred to Monongahela for the same date.

The change was made after American Legion officials at Uniontown failed to make proper preparations for handling the contest. The game will be staged at Monongahela under auspices of the American Legion post of that city.

Several players on both teams hail from the Monongahela section, and a capacity crowd is expected to attend.

JIM MORRISON'S YOUNG DAUGHTER GOOD GOLFER

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Sept. 26.—Little Mary Morrison, 11 years old, daughter of James Morrison, golf pro at the Pleasant Valley Country Club here, is shooting the difficult nine-hole course in 80 and is steadily improving her form. Enthusiastic over the game, she goes around with daddy every evening, and like all others who "take up golf" rather boasts about her accomplishment in shooting No. 2 hole in par of five.

EAST PITTSBURGH MARATHON ON TODAY

An 11-mile modified Marathon run will feature the Old Home Week program scheduled at East Pittsburgh today. The long race, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, will bring together the leading runners enrolled in the A. A. U.

Panther Work Better

PITT'S varsity football squad showed marked improvement yesterday afternoon, and the unsatisfactory scrimmage with the freshman on Monday was completely forgotten as the Panthers gave the yearlings a dose of their medicine.

Although Coach Jock Sutherland has not selected his starting lineup for the Thiel game Saturday, the combination that has been used for the past week will likely get the call.

A favorite backfield quartet is composed of Charley Edwards, quarterback; Josh Williams and Toby Uansa, halves, and Pug Parkinson, fullback. Joe Donchess and "Honey" Guarino seem to be the ends, by a wide margin, while Ray Montgomery and Mike Getto are the class of the tackles. Captain Alex Fox and Al DiMeolo are sure starters at the guards.

The center job is still open, with Eddie Baker and Markley Barnes fighting for the place.

The heavy rain yesterday curtailed the Panther's workout, but there was time for them to romp through the froth in a short scrimmage, and demonstrated that they are "ripe" for the opening engagement with Thiel.

CARNEGIE TECH

It wouldn't have been a good policy to approach Coach Wally Steffen yesterday. The Chicago gangsters would have been no match for the belligerent barrister. He was fairly peeved after watching the Plaid's varsity athletes go through dummy practice against the Plebes in the Tarton saucer.

"It would have been alright if you were playing at Wrigley Field where your could gum up plays," the Tartan coach said as he saw the team make a mess out of several plays. The Plaid gridders worked for more than two hours on a soggy field because the plays were not functioning properly.

Several changes loom in the Tartan proposed lineup for the opening game with Westminster College at Youngstown Saturday unless the men show improved form.

The Carnegie Tech Plebes will get their early test when they stack up against St. Vincent's College at Beatty, Pa., Saturday.

DUQUESNE

The 6-0 defeat of Ashland by Slippery Rock last Saturday was no surprise to Elmer Layden, as he expected that the teachers, whom his eleven plays on the Duke field next Saturday, would have a dangerous team. The victory of Ashland over the Dukes in the last game of the 1927 campaign, by 13-12, does not serve to daunt the Duke gridders.

The game will be a tossup. The elevens are almost even in weight, with Slippery Rock having a slight advantage. Both are fast.

The ends have been the big problem for the Dukes this year, and considerable worry was manifest over their form. They were given a grilling Tuesday afternoon in the running down after punts. Two teams were lined up with the first team on one side. Each of the eight ends got his turn. Donnelli, Benedict and McCarthy spelled each other off in sending out punts, which were run back as far as the ends permitted.

There was big improvement shown in the work-out, especially by Pratt, and if the ends hold up Duke fans will not have to watch Donnelli's 50 and 60-yard kicks run back 30 and 40 yards next Saturday.

WASH-JEFF

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 26.—Continuing his driving tactics with little letup, Coach Andy Kerr is sparing no effort to have his Wash-Jeff team in shape for the opening game here next Saturday with Bethany. News brought back by Line Coach Ray Ride from Bethany's game with Broaddus of last Saturday that the Bisons would present here at the end of the week one of the best teams Coach Nuss ever turned out on Buffalo Creek, has spurred the Red and Black corps to renewed effort to have their men fit for the opening tilt.

LOCALS LEAD AT CAMBRIDGE

CAMBRIDGE SPRINGS, Pa., Sept. 26.—Maurice LeBosquet, of the Castle Shannon Golf Club, Western Pennsylvania amateur champion, held a two-stroke advantage over his closest rival when the second 18-holes round of the 36-holes qualifying test of the annual invitation tournament of the Riverside Golf Club got under way here today.

The West Penn champ scored 75 for the 18 holes played yesterday, and is a strong favorite to annex medalist honors. M. P. Merritt, Allegheny College grid coach, was second with 77 and George A. Ormiston, secretary of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association, placed third with 78.

SPENCER WINS FUTURITY

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 26—Spencer, owned by David M. Look, of New York, won the $14,000 Kentucky Futurity here yesterday. Etta Volo was second and Nelly Signal third. The Rush, owned by W. W. Fleming, of Fairmont, W. Va., won the 2:20 trot and paid $585 for $10.

BILL MEHLHORN WINS

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Wild Bill Mehlhorn, representing the Fenimore Country Club, added the Westchester Country Club open championship title to his varied collection with a score of 146. Sol Buono was second with 148.

Mellow, Lingo Clash

TERRY LINGO, the little fighting fool from Cincinnati, who has been making his home here for some months, swings into action again tonight, against Johnny Mellow, of Detroit, in a 10-round return bout at McKeesport. He recently defeated Mellow at Louisville, but Johnny is quite a card in the Tube City, where he has done some of his best battling, and the fans are keen to see him go after revenge from Lingo.

Lingo returned to town yesterday from Cincinnati, where he went to train with some of his old sparring mates. After tonight's fight he will rest up for a couple of days before resuming light work for his mix with Freddie Fitzgerald, of Youngstown, at Washington, Pa., next Monday night.

Promoter Jim McGirr has booked a good preliminary card for tonight. He has Dominick Profio, the Western Pennsylvania amateur welterweight champion, turning professional against Jackie Murray, clever Negro boxer of Center avenue, in the semi-final. Jack McCarthy, of Pittsburgh, and Bob Severin, of Tarentum, welters, will meet in the second bout, and the opener will bring together Al Waldeck, of Tarentum, and Al Radley, of Pittsburgh, 130-pounders.

Only one of the two four-round preliminaries remains to be arranged for the opening show of the boxing season in Motor Square Garden next Monday night, with the signing yesterday of Tom Harris, of Lawrenceville, to box Georgie Peck, of the North Side, in the second event. Harris canceled a bout in New Castle for the same night to appear in the Garden. Joe Louder, of Arlington avenue, and Leo Kyburski, of Swissvale, will meet in the first six-round bout. This is a return engagement, Kyburski having recently handed a trimming to Louder in an open-air bout at Duquesne. Chuck Wiggins and Garfield Johnson will appear in the windup and Tony La Rosa, of Cincinnati, and Bobby Richardson, of Johnstown, in the semi-final.

Sergt. Sammy Baker and Young Corbett meet in their return bout at Ebbetts Field, Brooklyn, tonight. Baker recently received an unpopular decision over Corbett in Madison Square Garden. Meanwhile the news comes from New York that Joe Dundee, the welterweight champion, has been rematched with Young Jack Thompson, the Negro contender of California, who recently knocked him out in Chicago. They will clash in Madison Square Garden, November 16.

from Grand Rapids in the Interstate League and was used at first base here occasionally in place of Harry Davis until May, when he was sent to Detroit, then in the Western League.

SOUTHWORTH'S own playing, aside from his clever managerial work, had much to do with Rochester's triumph this year. He finished second to Dale Alexander of Toronto with an average around .370, and, though he was out almost a month with a wrenched knee, he was second only to Charley Gelbert for the leadership of his own club at knocking in runs. Billy poled 93 markers over the pan. Warren C. Giles, president of the Rochester club, pays this tribute: "Billy Southworth deserves all the credit for the splendid achievement. He has kept the morale of the players at a high pitch throughout the entire season. When injuries did so much to put the team seemingly out of the running during the latter part of July Billy did not give up hope. Instead, he imbued his men with his own fighting spirit and they responded handsomely to his fine example."

Karel Kozeluh

THE fact that Karel Kozeluh, called the greatest tennis player in the world, was able to defeat Vincent Richards for the third straight time last Sunday, is causing the experts to pick the Czechoslovakian star as the probable winner of the international professional tournament starting today at Forest Hills.

Richards originally was conceded to be the only entrant having a chance to defeat Kozeluh, but the best now predicted for him by many of the racquet dopesters is that he will reach the finals and then lose to the visiting crack.

VETERAN American tennis men who saw Kozeluh play Sunday say that he has beautiful style and that there is no discernible weakness in his figurative armor. Those who have played against him declare there is no spot in his game that could be attacked with any hope of success.

Kozeluh rarely comes to the net, but prefers to attack off the ground, and the player who endeavors to defeat him by coming to the net and volleying generally finds himself sadly out of luck. The champion will not make his first appearance on the opening card today until late in the afternoon. His first opponent will be John Collom of the United States.

BETHANY

Ronalds has been the fullback sensation of the fall.

The Bison schedule is one of that will afford the team a fine chance to compile a good record. It is not an extremely difficult one, nor it is any setup.

The season was opened last Saturday when Broaddus was crushed, 27 to 7. This week, the Bisons are to face Wash-Jeff in the twenty-second gridiron meeting of the two schools. On October 6, they will be in Pittsburgh for a game with Pitt. Neither the Presidents or Panthers will be able to do much loafing.

October 13 finds the Bisons idle. On October 20, Waynesburg will entertain the locals at Waynesburg. The following week is another idle one, but on November 2, Salem and Bethany will play here. November 10 they will be at home to Westminster and on November 17, Marshall College will be played at Huntington. The season will be brought to a close with the contest with the Dukes in Pittsburgh on November 24.

Sharpen Your Advertising Weapon to Fight for Trade

—By B. C. FORBES—

THE shoemaker's wife and the blacksmith's mare are always the worst shod, says an old adage.

Although newspapers and periodicals live largely by advertising, most of them were among the poorest of all advertisers until recent years. They solicited and exhorted others to advertise freely, but they themselves did not set an inspiring example.

Today aggressive newspapers and periodicals nearly all enthusiastically practice what they preach. They spend very large sums on advertising their own product. The Hearst newspapers, for example, are at this moment running full page copy and other large space in many newspapers and are also using pages in various national periodicals.

An interviewer asked me the other day, "Is there ever a time when a concern should not advertise?" My reply was, "Yes." He asked, "When?" "When it is ready to die," I replied.

ADVERTISING is to business what lather is to shaving: The more generously and vigorously it is employed, the easier it is to get the desired result. But too many advertisers expect to make a clean sweep without taking the pains first to apply the lather of advertising adequately.

The most sensationally successful of all American enterprises during the last year or more has been General Motors. Its total investment in advertising probably exceeds that of any other one concern in the world.

HERE are extracts from an interview with the writer of this column in "The American Press":

"'Advertising will have new fields thrown open to it within the next decade by a change in competition from intra-industrial struggle to a battle between organized industries for a share of the consumer's dollar,' believes B. C. Forbes.

"'In this battle of the industrial giants,' says Mr. Forbes, "'advertising's job will be to sell entire industries to the public. Advertising will point out new uses for established products, uses that have long been the accepted field of different products. It will open up hitherto unsuspected markets at home and abroad.

"'SELLING, which includes advertising, will be the dominant note of business in the next decade. The big rewards, the $100,000 to $500,000 salaries, will go to the selling brains.'

"'In the near future,' Mr. Forbes believes, 'the advertising of organized industries, and the larger industrial interests, will emphasize the personalities of the men behind these enterprises, and will seek to inspire the confidence of the working classes in their "bosses,' and in the entire capitalistic system.

"'America is becoming a nation of employed and employers, with the little business man reduced to a minimum, and the big corporations absorbing others, and growing bigger and bigger,' said Mr. Forbes.

"'Advertising's next job will be to convince the working classes that this system is the best for them, and convince them so thoroughly that they will not seek to overturn it by means of the ballot.

"'By humanizing industries such advertising would create a spirit of confidence among all concerned—the prospective customers, the workers of the industry itself, and workers in other industries. Such advertising would do more than sell a product. It would sell an industry to the public—and to itself.'

"Mr. Forbes believes that the country in which there is most advertising done is the country that is the most civilized, namely, the United States. He sees advertising's two chief faults in its lack of human appeal and disregard of the reader's interests.

"'As a reader,' he said, 'I am not interested in the advertisement. I am interested in myself and what the product being advertised can do for me. The advertisement generally does not talk enough about me. It talks too much of itself and its own affairs.'"

MAY I add that, in my opinion, many enterprises suffer because they do not attach enough importance to the position of their advertising manager? In most companies he should have vice-presidential rank and be given wide authority to exercise his genius.

There are heads of corporations who would not dream of interfering with the processes employed by their chief chemist or their lawyers or other specialists, but who foolishly imagine they know more about advertising than their specialist in it.

It is an unfavorable commentary upon the ability of the head of a concern to pick men if he cannot pick an advertising expert who possesses more knowledge of his line than the president himself.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—There was no change in the raw sugar market early today with spots quoted at 3.93c duty paid, and there were no sales. It was believed that yesterday's business in store sugars and for prompt shipment aggregated 75,000 bags of Cuban, all to local refiners.

The raw sugar futures market was less active, but the undertone was steady. First prices were unchanged to 3 points higher on covering and a little European buying, but realizing checked the upward movement and prices at midday were only about 1 to 2 points net higher. Reports from Amsterdam stating that the unsold Java crop at the beginning of September was 1,150,000 tons, was considered as bearish and may have promoted some of the late forenoon selling.

Probe of Graft Charges Wins Credit for Gardner

BASED on the charges of Alderman John J. Verona, vice and crime, with relation to their association to the police authority of Pittsburgh, are being probed. The inquiry is under way, directed by Judge James B. Drew, at the request of District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner. The sitting grand jury has been instructed to make the probe thorough and deep, and to proceed with the assurance that it is backed by all the authority of the court, and that it will have its full assistance as well as that of the district attorney's office and other agencies of justice. In fact, the grand jury was informed by Judge Drew, in his charge, that its inquisitorial power virtually is unlimited.

"We therefore direct you," a paragraph of the court's charge states, "to set aside all other public business and at once enter upon a thorough investigation of these grave charges. You may call before you anyone in the jurisdiction of the court and under oath examine him concerning the subject matter of your inquiry. If any person refuses to testify without sufficient excuse the court will commit him to jail for contempt. All the power of the law will back your investigation."

Judge James B. Drew

Hence, it will be discerned that Mr. Gardner spoke with full appreciation of all angles of the situation when, in commenting on the investigation, he said: "This is no picnic I've started—the lid's off."

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph is glad to congratulate Mr. Gardner upon his method of going into this thing, his determination to regard it as "no picnic," and the vigor and promptness with which he takes up the first phase of something that may shake Pittsburgh to its roots, or prove a fizzle as far as widespread graft is concerned. It cannot prove a failure altogether since there is bound to come within the knowledge of the grand jurors evidence of numerous flagrant violations of the law, which are more or less a matter of common knowledge. Of course, these matters could be brought before it in the ordinary process of law were our police and constables as vigilant as they should be, and the necessity of the extraordinary procedure now resorted to would not be in evidence.

The searching probe is just what is needed at this time. There is no doubt that conditions in Pittsburgh are deplorable. Whether that be the result of collusion between the forces of vice and of law, or merely because the law is either too stupid or too incompetent or too limited in numbers is something that should be developed in the inquiry.

We know there is much crime that is committed in defiance of all law, and in spite of its best and earnest efforts, but we have frequently faced the dishonor of having it charged that we have a great deal of vice and crime that energetic law enforcement would stamp out. We see that in the extent of the slot machine evil, permitted to grow either by connivance or because there were no vigorous and effective efforts made to stamp it out.

District Attorney Gardner

Alderman Verona has charged that the state of affairs in Pittsburgh was well known to every police officer in the city, from the highest to the lowest. Graft is the ugly word with which he accounted for it all. As the court said in its charge, if the accusation is true the morals of all of us are being corrupted, and that if they are untrue a "dastardly slander" has been uttered. It is now up to the grand jury to ascertain and to Mr. Gardner, perhaps, to act as a prosecutor on its findings. It is a way that will satisfy the public, which will support the district attorney with all the great power of its moral approval.

LIGHT ON THE SUBJECT

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Musical Auroras

The following letter, seeking for information, is interesting for the information that it itself supplies concerning a disputed phenomenon connected with the aurora borealis:

"Will you kindly explain the origin of the faintly audible sound that comes with the aurora borealis? This was a little more noticeable during the display last week than of that of this week, neither being as loud as the one several years ago.

"The first aurora was much lighter in color and more fluctuating. The one last week was darker, with more red color, while the one this week was of a deeper red color, with less fluctuations. It would seem that the brighter shades give a louder and more musical tone. Or, expressed in radio terms, higher pitch and greater volume.

"When I ask any of my friends they think I am 'spoofing,' but there IS a sound to the aurora, and you may be familiar with it.—X, Pittsburgh, Pa., July 11, 1928."

NO. I have never heard any sound caused by any aurora I have seen. But other persons have reported hearing sounds which they believed were connected with such displays. They have been described as faint rustling or swishing sounds; but I have never before heard of their having a "musical" tone. Some have denied the possibility of any sound being heard from the play of electric currents at an elevation of many miles above the earth. But the sounds might arise from associated electrical disturbances at the earth's surface, for auroras are always accompanied by more or less derangement of the earth's magnetism, and during a strong aurora the magnetic needle often exhibits extraordinary excitement. I regret that my Pittsburgh correspondent neglected to attach his full address, for his letter indicates that he may be able to contribute interesting facts to our scanty knowledge of the aurora borealis.

I suggest that all who may happen to see an auroral display should endeavor to detect any possible sounds appearing to be caused by it and, if they hear anything of that kind, communicate their observations to the Harvard Observatory. The writer of the letter above also touches on an important subject concerning which amateur observers could probably supply valuable notes, viz: the colors shown by auroras. These are often very striking and brilliant, and it would be useful if the observer could make a sketch in outline on which to note location and relative area of the patches of color seen. These are often shifting like the streamers and curtains of light themselves. Notes on the changes and the depth of colors, and on the precise character of any sounds heard, would be welcome contributions to science, and I have no doubt that any large observatory would receive them gladly for record, and perhaps in some cases for publication.

There is a very wide and rich field for exploration in nature which professional observers can not fully cover but which now, with the rapid advance of popular education in science, should begin to yield a great store of knowledge contributed by amateurs, who, by the cultivation of the habit of careful and thoughtful observation, would gain an advantage for themselves perhaps even more valuable than the contributions they would be able to offer to science.

Waste Motion

FIVE years ago our government appointed a fine American to represent it on the International Prison Commission, paid no heed to his reports, left him to carry the bulk of his expenses and now he has resigned, saying:

"I don't think the people of the United States are much interested in prisons abroad."

Probably not. Why should they be?

Five years ago a number of Americans had the notion that it was the duty of this country to give most of its thinking to affairs in sundry foreign parts of the world.

It was a rare day when they didn't find some new reasons for sending a commission thither or yon. For quite a spell the old-fashioned concept that it was a duty of our nation to attend to its own knitting was viewed as a sort of treason to mankind.

There is still something of an itch for miscellaneous co-operation of useless deputations with no particular function to perform. But, fortunately, it is abating.

When there is a real job to be done abroad, and the said of America is invited, the record shows that it will be forthcoming generously. But there is little value in waste motion.

Are You Unpopular?

YOU are not a good mixer—you wish you were.

You have tried out many suggestions you have found in books, or you have practiced some of the artifices which are supposed to add to popularity.

All of them have failed.

You don't seem to interest people for long.

They leave you and go to others.

You are uneasy in the company of those you wish most to please.

Your greatest failures come when you have tried the hardest to be entertaining.

Perhaps your greatest drawback has been that you have tried to repeat what some one else has said or done, and so you have not been yourself.

Of course, there is every evidence of a lack of sincerity.

You can't copy others and be yourself at the same time, can you?

Try being natural for a while.

Forget your supposed critics and make yourself interesting and becoming conversant with subjects which are used as the basis of conversation in the circle in which you move.

If these subjects are distasteful, get out of the crowd, for you will never qualify for popularity in that group.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

Echoes

SOME days song comes unbidden
And straightway cares depart,
The soaring notes of gladness
Are sunbeams in my heart.

The simplest things can bring them,
A smile, a daffodil,
A narrow pathway climbing
Green and tree-clad hills.

Some days song comes unbidden,
As gay as white-sailed ships
That greet the dawn's bright banners,
It lingers on my lips.

Then, miser-like, I treasure
Their sweetness all away,
In memory I keep them
For many a distant day.

When echoes will come drifting
From joyous days like this,
And songs that came unbidden
Will flood my thoughts with bliss.

Great Passages from the Bible

The Book of Jonah

Chapter II—Jonah's Prayer and Delivery.

THEN Jonah prayed unto the Lord his God out of the fish's belly,

And said, I cried by reason of mine affliction unto the Lord, and he heard me; out of the belly of hell cried I, and thou heardest my voice.

For thou hadst cast me into the deep, in the midst of the seas; and the floods compassed me about: all thy billows and thy waves passed over me.

Then I said, I am cast out of thy sight; yet I will look again toward thy holy temple.

The waters compassed me about, even to the soul: the depth closed me round about, the weeds were wrapped about my head.

I went down to the bottoms of the mountains; the earth with her bars was about me for ever: yet hast thou brought up my life from corruption, O Lord my God.

When my soul fainted within me I remembered the Lord: and my prayer came in unto thee, into thine holy temple.

They that observe lying vanities forsake their own mercy.

But I will sacrifice unto thee with the voice of thanksgiving; I will pay that that I have vowed. Salvation is of the Lord.

And the Lord spake unto the fish, and it vomited out Jonah upon the dry land.

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

IT IS funny how real settled-down married folks are always trying to rush young people into getting married. Well, some of the matchmakers ain't even married, but they like to see the young folks getting married. Of course, maybe the reason why the spinsters get to be matchmakers sometimes is that they like to attend weddings, and think how much better the bride could be made to look if she only didn't wear so much rouge.

Well, I heard about a spinster lady and an old married lady that was bedeviling a young man to get married. They told him, among other things, that married people always live longer. "Yes," says one of the old ladies, "Really, George, it'll add years and years to your life. You ought to be ashamed of yourself, making as much money as you do and staying single."

Well, this guy finally fell. He got married, and the old ladies were awful happy at the wedding.

He come across the two ladies that had egged him on to get married, one day five or six years later. The happy old souls were just then teasing another young feller, and trying to get him married. They called George in as a witness and one of them said, "Now, George, didn't we tell you that getting married would make you a lot happier? And that it would add years to your life? And ain't it all so?"

George said, "Well, I dunno. About this here adding years to your life, maybe it does, but I think probably it just seems longer."

In the Wee Hours

"HELLO. Is this—"

"No!"

"Isn't this—"

"No! Wrong number! And, what's more, you've dragged me out of bed at two in the morning. Who the deuce do you want?"

"Isn't this the college librarian?"

"What? Yes! . . . Goodness, has anything gone wrong! Is—is there a fire?"

"No, everything's all right. But I'd like to know, when do you open in the morning?"

"Half-past eight. Why—"

"Couldn't you open earlier? Maybe 8 o'clock?"

"No, I can't, and I won't! And what do you mean by disturbing me at this time o' night? Are you a student?"

"A freshman, sir."

"Well, of all the nerve! Where in the deuce are you?"

"Locked up in the library, sir."

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The thoroughfare that strikes me as having the most New York-ish flavor of all is Fourteenth street. A little below the mid-town tourist belt, it is not so frequented by sightseers and preserves many traditions.

It has for years been the home of Tammany Hall, and that institution is as indelibly linked with New York in public thought as the Flatiron Building or the Statue of Liberty. One finds on Fourteenth street innumerable residents born and reared in New York. The native New Yorker in native lair!

Their world is there and in this domain they have all the amusements Broadway offers—the play, vaudeville, movies, cafes, night clubs and the speakeasy. The cinema temples present orchestras almost as large as those on the Rialto.

Twenty-five years ago, 14th street was the Rialto, and a number of the theaters of that period survive. Electrically, the street comes mighty close to being as radiant as Broadway. Huge signs give night a brightness of midday.

There are still German beer stalls featuring sweating steins on mottoed pads where families go to hear excellent orchestras. While ostensibly near-beer is the tipple, the beer drinker knows it is on 14th street he is more than likely to be able to assuage his thirst with the real article.

Fourteenth street has catchpenny sidewalk amusement halls where favorite songs filter through ear trumpets and where peep shows reveal many divertisements. There are also wax medical museums stressing social ills and dispensing bottled cure-alls.

Natives along Fourteenth street are likely to drop their r's. Thus a bird is a "boid" and a girl is a "goil." Back rooms of tobacco shops have friendly pinochle games. Every evening after folk come home from work and wash up there is pavement promenade. In all, a pleasant street.

It is on 14th street, so far as I have been able to observe, the last of the Indian cigar store signs stands. It is mildewed, scrofulously chipped and weather beaten, but a pleasant reminder of almost forgotten days when a 10-cent cigar was a symbol of the spendthrift.

Big movie houses employ expert money changers in ticket cages and as far as possible only those whose honesty is unquestioned, yet in a day at one theater $98 was left behind by those who grabbed their tickets and rated for the entrance.

The aristocratic centers springing up in the East Side tenements—Sutton Place, Beekman Place, Tudor City and Turtle Bay—are an amazing example of the way New York follows a leader. Five years ago these districts were known as slums. Then a woman of social prominence decided she wanted a hide-away and converted an old house on the river front into a mansion of splendor. Today one turns from mean, shabby streets of fire escapes criss-crossed with wet wash into areas of splendor. A block from where a pushcart peddler is selling hot potatoes on a stick there will be found courtyards with fountains and doremen roped in gold.

An enterprising gentleman has become a professional "party thrower," and is profiting handsomely. All a host or hostess needs to do is give him a list of guests and the date. He does everything else in the way of sending out invitations, providing decorations, liquid refreshments, music, food and seeing to it there are enough innovations to keep a party from yawning. His charge is high, but those who have employed him say he is a honey.

Newspapermen, according to a New York theatrical producer, are without admiration for a real artist. Not always. I still thrill over the waitress who can flounce up a restaurant napkin so it stands and resembles King George's crown.

Crossword Puzzles

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A new crossword puzzle book has come to my desk. I don't know whether I am foolish or just look foolish, but somehow the publishers of these crossword puzzle books have marked me for their own.

How do they know that I work every crossword puzzle that I find in the papers? How do they know that I even buy a magazine sometimes just because it's got one of these spotted diagrams in it?

People say that the crossword fad has run its course.

Maybe.

But there are still a lot of people left who like to play chess and work diagrams and puzzles and who get interested in mystery stories.

Perhaps they are morons. I have been accused of being a moron, and this proves it.

There is something to be said for this craze.

One thing is that it is usually silent. It keeps a man's nose buried in the page and it doesn't bother anybody else generally.

Whether it improves his vocabulary or not, I am unable to say. I do not know whether it is any advantage for a man to be familiar with yaks, xats, emus and other strange things. It may be that this is just intellectual fact and renders the mind obese.

But I love words. I must say that I like to play with them just as little girls love to play with paper dolls. I enjoy working at word games with a pencil and paper, and all sorts of logomachy are my meat.

That there are others like me is proven by the fact that this is the tenth crossword puzzle book there has been issued in four years. The fad has been running, I think, for some 20 years.

Some people like to play solitaire, some prefer to wiggle their thumbs, and some are never happy until they can find someone with whom to talk.

But there are others of us who love to chase the festive word.

We may not know much and the business of word-making may be rather puerile, but all the same we like it. And anyway it is not so precarious an entertainment as smoking cigarets or drinking bootleg, and there are not many of us who have been trained to play horse shoes.

Crossword puzzles will not develop your muscles nor renew your youth particularly, but they are good amusement for Alice-sit-by-the-fire.

OH, THESE WOMEN

By LEOLA ALLARD.

CHARITY: "I don't give to the blind men because I want to help them," said the coy young thing, dropping a coin into the tin cup at the subway station, "but they say it brings you good luck, and I could use a little."

If you men want to know where the money goes, sneak into a department store one idle hour, and climb on one of these moving stairways. When it gets about half way up, look down and see at which counters the women shoppers have gathered.

You will find your wives and daughters buzzing like bees around the fake pearls, synthetic sapphires and other gee gaws. The lights in the showcase make the heat weakening on a hot day, but they lean on them and look and look, and buy and buy.

The counters that do the least business seem to be the ones where they sell things by the yard, such as dress goods and curtaining. These things require home work and some effort.

The perfume counters are packed. Also the places where they sell makeup.

It may be Babylonian foolishness, but there it is!

She was a girl who raged inwardly about the prices of dry cleaning. You could see that. She got into the subway in a neat little blue and white sweater, and an immaculate white silk skirt, carefully pleated. I think she had just paid a cleaner's bill. She took out her 'kerchief and wiped off the wicker seat, and then sat down, smoothing the skirt under her, and sitting down in a gingerly fashion But her 145 pounds weighted down the pleating, and what looked like a coal heaver had sat on that wicker seat before her.

Optimism is always a be-oo-tiful thing. Especially in a subway.

A Bridgeport (Conn.) lady announces to the Superior Court that it is not any woman's duty to go to the North Pole and live with her husband. She adds: "It is impossible to be happily married at 40 degrees below zero."

"The North Pole" was Quebec, Canada.

While the court is thinking it over, it might be well to remind him that Ziegfeld knows girls who would sizzle at that temperature.

The lady might remember that with most marriages the temperature drops like that. And it feels much colder when it is only figurative.

The fact that a big eastern railroad is going to dismiss all married women employes, brings the accusation that it is a concerted movement among males to re-establish the American home.

There is a good deal of whistling among the men, many of whom actually believe that they would be happy even if they had to substitute for a few cookies in a highly decorated can, that costs more than the cookies, a batch of old-fashioned home-made doughnuts that they could eat the same day they were cooked.

Isn't It So?
